"To me, distinctive means something that stands out or is above the rest, something to be noticed, admired, and in some cases respected. Our school, I feel, fits this description perfectly with its variety of people, personalities and races. Our school is definitely distinctive, and I think that's something we can all be proud of." Mark Pope, Senior.

DISTINCTION

MAKES THE DIFFERENCE

Distinction (n.) The act of distinguishing a difference; producing something which distinguishes one thing from another.

By 1986, Alameda High School had arrived at the point of distinction, culminated by years of hard work and dedication. The students knew it, the faculty could feel it, and the community could see it. This new spirit seemed to illuminate the hallways, reverberating from one end of the building to the other.

"A good program always begins with the people," said Dr. Gretchen Wheelwright, principal. "They're our greatest strength and distinguishing quality."

And so they were. People such as Tracy Wright, student body president. Tracy's energy and enthusiasm helped raise school spirit and pride to its highest level in 1987, and encouraged universal involvement. "It's important that each student feels like they belong here. I'm trying my hardest as president to include every type of person in our activities. AHS is a great place to be!!"

Changes outside the classrooms also contributed to the "'87 attitude". It was a clean, repaired campus which welcomed students back in September, and a feeling of school pride that kept it looking that way. Homecoming Week activities included "Keep your campus clean" relays, led by the senior court.

STUDENT LIFE

DISTINCTION in diversity
Memories of friendship

At Alameda High School, diversity meant many different people doing many different things. The students served as the backbone of student life. The word in its extreme makes for interesting daily events that in turn formed the memorable 1986-1987 school year.

In the first assembly, which was dedicated to student talent, we were given a preview of the various abilities of our classmates, including singing and dancing.

Other students possessed unique talents ranging from playing the harp to water-skiing barefoot. Various school groups performed their special talents: our sports teams excelled in a new league, our drama department produced theatrical works of art, clubs organized to reach their goals, the music and art departments practiced to surpass former progress, classes competed to win class competition and teachers worked to educate students. All these aspects of AHS' diversity in activity were sources of pride for those all included in the Hornet family.

Perhaps the most important aspect of diversity at AHS had to do with those talents that cannot be classified or involved in competion. All of us have different qualities—in our personalities, family, and the things that are important to us. It is these qualities that shine through to create that special Hornet uniqueness.

A MASQUERADE

This year's Homecoming at Alameda High School had all of the traditional aspects. There was the creativity and class effort that went into the making of the floats for the parade, the excitement of the actual football game, the presentation of the court, and the suspense of the crowning of the Homecoming King and Queen. The fact that this event fell on October 31, Halloween, added to the festivities and made the 1986 Homecoming celebration something special. The floats were elaborate, including the winning Senior class float which featured a masquerade ball scene.

Homecoming ceremonies were held at halftime, and amidst an arch of gold and black balloons, Joey Defranco and Tammy Blanchard were crowned King and Queen.

The Hornets lost a 41-6 battle to the De La Salle Spartans.

Masquerade Ball

The Homecoming Dance held on October 31, was the masqurade ball of the year. Almost everyone wore costumes to the dance.

Some of the people showed up in costumes that ranged from Mickey and Minny mouse, to flappers and gangsters, Rambos and life guards. "I liked most of the costumes, people had great imaginations this year." said Tim Folsom, junior.

"It was the best dance I've been to this school year, replied Tony Patterson, junior.

At 10:15 p.m. the homecoming court was crowned. The court was as follows: M.J. Mariani and Michelle Gilchrist freshmen prince and princess.

Mike Ross, and Stacy Graves sophomore prince and princess. Matt Rogers and Teresa Birky junior prince and princess. The seniors court was princes and princesses Tony Frey and Tracy Wright, Art Thoms, and Shannon Knepper, and John Harris and Sheri Seto, Sean Porter, and Denise Johnson and the king and queen were were Joe DeFranco and Tammy Blanchard. After they were crowned the King and Queen danced a slow dance together.

WHAT'S NEW?

There were many different fads and fashions represented at Alameda High. Hanging suspenders, Esprit bags, scrunchy socks, Guess? jean jackets, shades, and rockers were only a few of these fads and fashions.

Hanging suspenders? Students wore them with jeans or baggies, but they were almost never worn on their shoulders

People carrying multi-colored Esprit bags crowded the halls. These oversized bags were usually loaded with Mr. Dare's U.S. history book, Mrs. Gallagher's geometry book, or Mr. Brooks' physiology book.

Guess? No, not jeans, but jean jackets. From stone-washed to indigo, Guess? jackets were the latest fad.

The fad that never faded was, you guessed it, shades. "Everyone looks good in sunglasses. They make everyone look cool," commented Ms. Carmel Zimmerman, teacher. At the circle or in the streets, these optics will always be in style.

"It's all right to call us rockers," stated Justin Blok. Rockers were the people who listened to heavy metal, and wore jeans and t-shirts. Rockers, like everyone else, showed a distinct style through their music, dance, and dress.

A SMASHING SPIRIT

Spirit week was a big success with all the classes turning out to do their best. The classes competed in Spirit Week halls and also in skits. “Spirit Week brings out the sprit in everyone. Spirit Week showes the freshman what high school is all about. Fun, class competitions, meating new people all strenghthen the students pride in AHS,” said Senior Brent Uridge.

The Senior class won for best hall with the Juniors coming in a close second. The sophmores finished third, and last but not least the Freshman finished fourth. Each class decorated their hall according to their class themes which were: “Seniors get Star Struck”, ‘‘Juniors go Around the World’’, “Sophmores go through the Holidays’’ and “Freshman go Safari”.

The classes' skits were based on their theme and on the big game with Encinal. The Juniors nudged out the Seniors to take first place in the skits by a very small margin. The Sophmores again took third place and the Freshman rounded out the list with fourth.

What a party! - Sophomores Cybelle Kelly and Janice Ma party at the Spirit Week assembly. The Sophomores' theme this year was “Through the Holidays”.

Look out for cannibals - Freshnam Suzy Oram, Julie Long and Sophomore Stephane Laub travel through the freshman hall.

Watch your step - Senior Lynn Hanisberger comes down from the steps from Hollywood. Lynn hosts the cable show Sports Outlook.

Take a trip through the Nile - Barbara Gravelle, Karin Ingeman and Nani Greene.

Star Stuck! - Kelly Wandke emerges from the senior hall. Kelly worked on the winning senior hall this year.

Boy, what a view! - Juniors Jason Pollard and Oshi Jauco climb the Eiffel Tower. The Juniors won the spirit competition.

What a line up! - Members of the Senior Class perform at the Spirit Week skit. The Senior class came in second for their performance.

Smile! - Kent Doan and Tracy Wright dressed in their best gold and white.

Don't be camara shy! -Michell Gilchrist get's physical for sports day.

Studly Sam! - Junior Sam Flores participates in the Spirit Week skit. Sam was the starting quarterback for the varsity football team.

SPIRIT WEEK COUNTDOWN

On the first day of Spirit Week the Hornets sent to me a Hornet in an oak tree.

Alameda High came out in force for Stuff'em Day on Monday. There were stuffed animals of all kinds, "Rambear" to Opus the Penguin. "Stuff'em Day encouraged more overall support for Spirit Week. The variety of stuffed animals showed the variety of interest at AHS," commented Junior Elizabeth Brown.

On the second day of Spirit Week the Hornets sent to me: two football players and a Hornet in an oak tree.

On Tuesday the Hornets dressed in their finest sport outfits for Sports Day. Baseball and football jerseys were the norm, volleyball and soccer jerseys were also seen.

On the third day of Spirit Week the Hornets sent to me; three winning skits, two football players and a Hornet in an oak tree.

The classes of Alameda had several different themes this year. Seniors went "Star Struck". Juniors traveled "Around the World". Sophomores "Visited the Holidays", and Freshman went "Safari".

On the fourth day of Spirit Week the Hornets sent to me: four fashionable classes, three winning skits, two football players and a Hornet in an oak tree.

AHS looked like it was out of Vogue magazine on GQ/Vogue day. The student body was dressed in their finest outfits. Many students wore skirts, dresses, slacks and ties to school.

On the fifth day of Spirit Week the Hornets sent to me: five golden Hornets, four fashionable classes, three winning skits, two football players and a Hornet in an oak tree.

Gold and white clothes were worn on the fifth day of Spirit Week. The Hornets showed their spirit by wearing the school colors. Letterman sweaters and jerseys were popular. Many just wore yellow and white shirts.

Tropical Fever

It had finally arrived. I remember as I approached the gym, I could see the bright, flashing lights and feel the loud, thumping vibrations of the music beneath my feet. The theme was "Go Hawaiian" and it was called the Aloha Dance to welcome the incoming freshmen and other new students.

As I entered the gym, I saw a wide variety of upper and lower classmen. A whopping 560 kids showed up. Everyone was decked out in their best Hawaiian garb, and colorful Leis were handed out to the first 150 people who showed up. The pulsating sounds were provided by Music Masters, who did a great job of pleasing the tastes of all the people who attended that first festive affair.

I later learned from Colleen Clark, dance commissioner, that the whole dance grossed about $1807. The leadership class was responsible for thinking up the theme and creating the decorations.

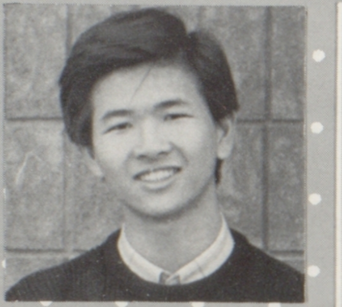
What was the most embarrassing date you ever had?



Donald Wong, senior

"I gave a $50 tip once, and I had to go back into the restaurant and switch the $50 for a $5."

Mike Smith, senior

'I met this girl and we decided to go over to my boss's apartment to make dinner. When we got there, I didn't even have the key to the apartment. We ended up at McDonalds."

Trudy Shiu, junior

"He had problems driving and he kept on killing the engine. He also didn't know how to park the car."

Terri Olsen, teacher

"I thought that we were going out Saturday night, but it was Friday night. I was weeding the garden. My five year-old let him in and shoved a hot dog at him."

I love it when you smile like that! - Tom McPherron sweet talks Julie Storm into going to the movies on Friday night. Julie and Tom are in their junior year at AHS.

IT TAKES TWO

AHS and dating almost seemed synonymous in the world of student life. In the halls, at dances, or during lunch, you were bound to find a couple in a deep conversation. But just what was the definition of a date? How was it started? What went on? From an unofficial dating poll, students at AHS often walked up to a person and asked him/her out if they found that person attractive, but a minority of students did prefer being asked over the phone. Over 50% of dates began at 7 p.m. and usually lasted until 12 a.m. or later. The type of dress was usally casual, but if dinner at a sophisticated restaurant was on the agenda, then a nice shirt, tie, or dress would be considered.

What fun activities did couples usually plan on dates? About 30% of the students began their night with dinner in San Francisco, but 60% usually went to the movies. Other students then moved on to dancing or spent the night talking and getting to know each other better. On the average, the tab for such a night ran up to $20, although some students did spend up to $40.

Most couples preferred single dating to double dating. "It's more intimate," remarked Junior Trudy Shiu. However, those couples who enjoyed double dating did say that they were more fun.

Almost everybody had a perfect date in mind, whether it was a person or situation. Teacher Terri Olsen's perfect date was to go to a Cal-Stanford game where Cal would win.

Sophomore Denise Miller's perfect date was quite different. "The perfect date would be to go out and have fun talking to that person," she said, "and you laughed."

Smile, it'll all be over soon. - Sarah Leslie and Chris Edwards wait for a table for dinner.

Take me out to the ball game! - Mark Birkhead and Cindy Bookspan take off for a baseball game.

Join Us! - Greg Curtis and Shannon Knepper smile from the leadership booth.

Taking Charge

The Alameda High School fall student body officers always kept busy by planning fun and exciting activities for the entire student body.

Mr. Robert Rodd, the advisor, responded to the same question by saying that they were, "Doers, gifted, creative and capable people."

These officers were in charge of putting on such events as Freshman Orientation, Club Day assemblies, spirit and Homecoming Weeks, dances, rallies, class competitions and intramural sports.

The eight people who ran and lead us in our school activities from September to December were Tracy Wright, student body president; Shannon Knepper, vice president; Colleen Clark, secretary; Kent Doan, treasurer; Greg Curtis, class competition comissioner; Sheri Seto, spirit leader; Lynn Horrisberger, publicity officer and Sarah Spiersch, commissioner of intramurals.

UNIQUENESS

Whether it was collecting, biking, hiking, or eating, all of us needed a way to relax. One of the greatest escapes is a hobby. At AHS, we're not talking any run-of-the-mill type hobbies, we're talking major originality! So in honor of our students with a tiny touch of class, we devoted this section to the absolute originals. Here's just a sample of Alameda High's unusual hobbyists.

CAROL SETO

A freshman at AHS, Carol Seto was no freshman when it came to waterskiing. Four years' experience backed up her title as the National Girls' Overall Champ. What were her thoughts about waterskiing? "Barefoot waterskiing is a really trying experience," Carol replied. "You've got to have a lot of balance, strength, and stamina." With balance, strength, and stamina, there's no doubt that Carol Seto will barefoot her way to success.

JUNIOR TAAMU

He sang faithfully in church choir, he sang again at AHS. Beach Boys oldies and soul here his main interests, but his inspiration was the King of Rock: Elvis Presley. Although there is no way Junior will ever serenade anybody, his favorite singing sidekicks were Seniors Eddie Fuentes and Frankie Esparza.

SHAY BARGER

A devoted trekkie and Spock fan, Shay had seen every Star Trek episode once, and one particular episode twenty-seven times! Shay had been in the Star Trek fan clan since last year and her hundreds of trekkie paraphernalia ranged from comic books to even a Cling-On dictionary. The Star Trek saga continues with trekkie Shay Barger.

KRISTIN FAIRFEILD

Presenting: Kristin Fairfeild, the versatility virtuosa. For Kristin, hobbies weren't just something to fill up time, her pastimes were a way to express her feelings. "Accomplishment," said Kristin. "There's always something to learn and my hobbies have always been a part of me." Although she had no plans to bring her hobbies into her future career, her pastimes promised to be an enriching part of her life.

Spectacular sounds Junior Taamu and Frankie Esparza make a spectacular singing duo as they harmonize during choir.

Shed your shoes to a barefoot frenzy Waterskier Carol Seto smiles pretty for the camera as she glides over the water at the Alameda Waterway. Carol recently took the award for tricks and the wake slalom at the California State Championships.

SHOW BIZ

"Assemblies are fun, it shows show much talent and spirit is at our school," replied Sophomore Sally Hom when asked how she felt about assemblies.

Shannon Knepper, who was in charge of assemblies, commented that before being staged, assemblies were complete pandemonium. If one succeeded she couldn't stop smiling. She said a perfect assembly would be one that all faculty and students enjoyed. Shannon had the help of the leadership class behind her to put together the assemblies.

The first assembly took place on October 1, and it showed a sampling of the talent at AHS. Caroline Benabou sang "The Greatest Love of All" by Whittney Houston. Elisa Jacobs performed a modern dance number. Kristen Fairfeild, Cristen Battersby, and Jill Rydman sang a song from "My Fair Lady." Also at the assembly was a skit performed by the student body officers and the pom-pon girls and cheerleaders performed also.

The second assembly was the spirt assembly and took place on October 8. Each class did a skit dealing with their theme of spirit week. The Seniors got star-struck, the Juniors spanned the globe, the Sophomores went though the holidays, and the Freshemen went on safari.

Future Supremes? - Jill Rydman, Kristen Fairfield and Cristen Battersby sing. The three girls are seniors.

Go AHS! Dina Johnson and Laurel McAdams perform at the assembly. Both girls are on the varsity pom-pon squad.

Slumber Party - Rick Keiser, Jeff Wright, Karin Ingeman and Ray Kang look through an album at the spirit assembly. They placed third at the assembly for their skit.

At the Movies? - David Wendling and Sean Porter are movie critics in the senior skit. The seniors took second place at the Spirit assembly.

Slam those Cokes - Chris Lucasey and Greg Curtis drink Coke while Kent Doan looks on. Who burped the loudest was never determined.

MOVIN'

Skateboarding, walking, driving, there are so many possiblites to get to school, how could one choose?"I usually got a ride but somethimes I had to walk," said Karen Gee, a junior. Among the newest trend this year, was the Red Honda Elite. Driving a scooter was the coolest way in getting to school.

Fly - Marc Ambrose is in rare form. This is one way to get to school.

Going on a shopping spree? - The latest trend in getting to school.

In elementary school it was a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, carefully browned bagged. In junior high it was going to the school cafeteria for a hot tray, in high school it was enjoying the many nourishment opportunities on Park Street. JD's Bagel Bar, New York Pizza, Pampered Pup, and Yogurt Plus, were a few of the most frequently visited places.

Fortunately, Alameda High School is located in the main business district. It enabled more and more students to go out to lunch instead of packing one. "I usually bought a yogurt at the corner store. It's light and it was easier than bringing a lunch," said Cindy Bookspan. Most people, bought or brought their lunch, ended up gathering on the green space. Various activities such as rallies, class competition, and socializing all took place there. Musical entertainment was provided by Jason Gard and friends. Lunch was extended five minutes this year, which helped everyone make it back to class on time.

Bagel and Cream Cheese please - Lisa Ayomana and Gretchen Skillman enjoy a bagel at J.D.'s.

Come join me! - Kim Thoreson enjoys an exciting lunch!

Is the food really that bad? - Apparently, Derek Smitheram doesn't think so.

BOO!

“The dance was fun and the costumes at school were really ‘creative!’” said freshman Kristen Gardner.

It’s that time of year when people of every age could dress up as their favorite character, personality, or fantasy. When you could do silly things and nobody thought you were weird! Trick or Treat, Halloween. Around AHS people were dressed as witches, fairies, babies, cowboys and girls, bumble bees, etc . . .

This fun and exciting day was on a Friday this year with a spirited atmosphere that made the day worth while. There was even a Halloween dance that night.

Senior Erin Linager who dressed as a space cadett said, “Halloween is a good day for us to show our spirit and how live Alameda is!”

WORKING CLASSES

Many students at Alameda High worked for experience, college references, to earn spending money, or to save up for special purchases. Other students worked to pay off phone bills and car insurance.

What kind of jobs did students have? Some students worked as cashiers, secretaries and office workers. Tracey Finger, junior, worked as a pool attendant and lifeguard.

Did students have pressures between their jobs and school? The answers students gave to this question was a definite yes. "It puts a strain on you because you want to go out with your friends, but you have to work," said Michelle Metzner. Julie Kunith replied, "I really wanted to keep my job and do well in school. There's just not enough time in a day."

So to do well in both, Julie quit running on our cross-country team. Many students said that they ended up missing their after school time.

How did students feel about the people they worked with? Senior Rhonda Wilcox, a secretary replied, "They're real friendly, they treat me like a normal person."

How did students get their jobs and how hard was it? Gerry Holford said that it was not so hard. She turned in her application to Burger King and got the job the next day. Many other students worked for family businesses while others got their jobs through people they knew. Rhonda Wilcox said, "My boss called me up one night and asked if I wanted the job." However many students got work the regular way by filling out applications and sweating out for reply.

May I help you?- Laura Paraschak is prepared to take your order or clean the windows.

STRIVE FOR SPIRIT

Class competitions were a race, a fun hearted, but competitive, rally for the committed. One Friday a month, competitions were held between each of the four classes to see who had the ultimate performance.

But what goal did Commissioner of Spirit, Greg Curtis, hope to accomplish through such humilifying events as hands free ice cream devouring?

"I want to get people involved in class spirit and have fun," informed Greg. He said the upperclassmen were the most cooperative.

"I think they're great. It's funny to watch the classes compete," commented Kim Blankenship.

"Class competitions bring out the ability and willingness of a class to work together," Kathy Madaras added.

At the end of the year, the one outstanding class excelling with the most points, to prove its dominating spirit and dedication, had the honor of labelling their class as the spirit champions of 1987 on a large trophy.

La Cucaracha- Jason Pollard stomps out the Mexican hat dance to earn points for the junior class.

NIGHT OWLS

Friday and Saturday were the nights to go out and not worry about having to be home early, to get up and to school, and do your homework. Some of the places A.H.S. students could be found were on Telegraph Ave. in Berkeley, Mels bowling alley, the South Shore Cinemas, and Century 4. They also shopped at South Shore and Bay Fair malls.

The Spring 1987 Student Body Officers had their work cut out for them. Following in the footsteps of Fall's ASB officers was no simple act. But leadership and determination paid off for the group, as their accomplishments far surpassed anyone's expectations.

Tracy Wright-President, led the policy committee in working on public relations, school-wide communication, and revising the school constitution.

Lynn Horrisberger-Vice-President, headed the Assembly Planning committee in creating school assemblies.

Colleen Clark-Recording Secretary, chaired the Social Activities committee, planned and executed school dances, and took minutes at student body senate meetings.

Jennéa Weber-Treasurer, kept financial statements for the four classes, and was in charge of the school carnival.

Kim Stander-Spirit Leader, chaired the Campus Affairs committee, and was in charge of school activities such as Faculty Valentines and Spirit days.

Tera Munro-Publicity Officer, wrote the Hornet's Buzz, made advertisement posters, and updated the Main Hall's electric sign board.

Oshi Jauco-Intramurals commissioner, ran spring lunch-time activities like indoor soccer, and badminton.

Sarah Spiersch-Class Competition Commissioner, planned all noon class competitions, created the Ice Cream Bowl and Gumball Rally, and finally awarded the "Class Competition" trophy for overall spirit points to the Senior Class.

Mr. Robert Rodd-Leadership advisor, calls this group "The absolute finest that AHS has to offer. There isn't a thing that they can't do, as a matter of fact, they do a lot of things that they aren't supposed to!! They are without a doubt the "movers and shakers of this school."

... And justice for all

Night Life

The Twilight Zone, a teen-age dance club for ages 13-20 opened on October 3, 1986. It was a place for teenagers who wanted to go out and enjoy themselves in a drug and alcohol free environment. The club was supervised by adults.

The process of opening The Twilight Zone was difficult, since it needed an approval from all of the Park Street merchants, within 500 square feet. Many of these merchants feared that break-ins and vandilization would occur if the establishment opened.

After the first weekend there were no problems, but The Twilight Zone only had a provision permit consisting of 30 days.

The Twilight Zone offered many activites for the kids to participate in while they were at the nightclub. On Saterday nights at 10:00 pm they had lip sink contests which had cash awards. In the weeks preceeding the Halloween weekend, they had "Battle of the D.J.'s," where the kids decided who they wanted to D.J. the big Halloween masquerade dance, held on November 1, 1986.

Ray and Michelle Jordon opened The Twilight Zone because they saw that teen-agers didn't have a fun place to go to on Friday and Saturday nights. They felt that this was especially true for those who didn't drive.

At The Hop

In early October South Shore celebrated the grand opening of the recently remodeled mall with a 50's dance. Several people dressed up and danced the night away to music varying from Elvis to the Beach Boys. Early in the evening there was a hula-hoop contest and a costume contest. The music was supplied by KYA and the hula-hoops by Toy Town.

Classy Imports

Six students from various parts of the world came to Alameda to improve their English and to learn more about our country. "I wanted to broaden my horizons and I wanted to improve my English skills and obtain a common knowledge about American history, culture, and society," said Jens Brockhoff of Denmark.

"I've noticed that the people in the USA are different than in my home country," admitted Nina Malo of Finland. Not all the exchange students felt the same way as Nina, and though she thought that people from California were different she thought they were friendly as well. Monica Gil from Spain said, "I think Alameda is a nice place and the people are very friendly. I love Alameda."

Leaving their own countries to go to another country did not have just advantages but some disadvantages as well. For instance, they missed their own parents, friends and other members of their family, and the family they are staying with might have differnt values and rules other than the ones they are used to. "I miss my best friend and somtimes I wish it wasn't so hot here. So I guess I miss the snow," said Lil Lian from Norway.

For some of the students this year did not count as a school year for them but only as a vacation. "This year counts for me as the most important and finest year of my life," replied Marc Feldmann of Germany.

Just Say No

"Just say no" was a drug awareness campaign. Telling school age children to "Just say no" to drugs and alcohol. On Monday October 13, approximately 125 students from Alameda High School took periods one through four off to go to the anti-drug rally on board the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Kittyhawk. They were escorted to the deck of the Kittyhawk. There were nine other schools present to form the phrase "Just say no". Alameda High students formed the letter n. This was filmed by a helicopter to later be made into a television commercial to promote the anti-drug campaign.

After the students formed their letters, Rear Admiral R.L. Toney gave a speech. He also read letters from San Francisco's Mayor Diane Feinstien and Nancy Reagan. At the end of the rally, participating students were given a copy of the letters and a "Just say no" banner.

Up In Smoke

Hot Spot - An Alameda fireman peers out of the wreckage. This photograph was taken by Alameda Times Star's Ben Margot.

On september fifth at 10:16 a.m., there was a fire in the old building. The fire started in the boy's downstairs bathroom and spread to the outside wooden frame of the building. Custodian Alan Bullock, teacher Paul Moore and Custodian Lou Zobb had the fire containted. Bullock and Zobb hauled a 50 ft. fire hose to the scene of the fire and put it out before the fire trucks arrived. The fire caused approximately $3,500 worth of damage.

A Tribute To David Wilson

There have been young men who have walked upon this earth who will be remembered for their dedication, their achievements and contributions to the world in which they lived. David Wilson will be remembered for these things. He enriched the lives of those around him during his 15 years of life. Although he left us at an early age, he will long be remembered by his many friends, acquaintances and family.

He was so accomplished in such a variety of life's activities that his resume would equal that of someone twice his age. Yet, he was modest and unassuming in his achievements. His main interest was in athletics wherein he achieved greatness in track and field, having established age group national records in the discus and hammer throw. He was the best freshman discus thrower in Alameda High School history. He was outstanding in baseball and a variety of other sports. His accomplishments in weight lifting in his age group are remarkable. On top of all these successes, he found time to play in the Wood School band, carry a paper route and to study. David symbolized the finest in American youth. He was a bright and gifted young man with a great future ahead of him. Tragically, that future ended before its time.

Adios Alameda!

Fifteen lucky students spent their Easter vacation experiencing life and culture in Mexico—a language that they had each studied for at least 5 years. Chris Edwards, Tim Folsom, Lynn Horrisberger, Darryl Lee, Tera Munro, Jennifer Olson, Karina Ortega, Rachel Reed, Lillian Quinada, Michelle Simpson, Don Taylor, Christina Yeager, and Desmond Chin were the lucky candidates. This incredibly enthusiastic group was chaperoned by equally excited and energetic adults: Mrs. Teri Olsen, Foreign Language teacher, and Mrs. Johanna Winzenread, Media Specialist.

The trip took place over Easter vacation week, and the schedule of events was mind-boggling! The travelers saw such sights as the National Anthropology Museum, famous Chapultepec Park, and historical pyramids. The students stayed with host families who had high school aged children. When they weren't sight-seeing or extending their knowledge and usage of the Spanish language, the group enjoyed social events with their guides such as movies, dancing, and parties.

Each student stayed in a different home, and later said that it was a good idea. "It forced me to rely on my Spanish vocabulary for all communication." said Tera Munro, senior. "Overall", Tera added, "The trip added a whole new dimension to the Spanish language for me. I learned to see it as a culture, not just a subject."

A Celebration

Spanning the bay, the longest and busiest high-level suspension bridge, the Bay Bridge celebrated its fiftieth year anniversary last '86. Bay area locals were packed like sardines on the shores and struggled to climb nearly buildings to witness the memorable event, and even traffic was stopped as commuters stepped out of their cars to gawk at the array of fireworks that lit up the horizon.

The seventy-eight million dollar bridge altered our lives tremendously by carrying 250,000 vehicles a day and from the nerve center of the East Bay-San Francisco. The Bay Bridge not only fused the gap between the sister shores, but opened everyone to new ideas and trends. Happy fiftieth to the bridge that changed our lives!!

Bon Voyage!

This year the Foreign language department was presented by the Association of Secondary School Teachers with an exceptional opportunity to expand the horizons of five lucky bilingual high school students. These 4th or 5th year students of French went to France for 3 weeks to participate in an exchange program as the first group to do so in Northern California. Participating students were: Doug Gammel, junior, Kathy Madaras, senior, Tom McPherron, junior, Julie Storm, junior, and Encinal senior Renato Escudaro. Ms. Alicia Nourse, French teacher and head of the Foreign Language Department was the AHS escort.

These students were each set up with a family to live with, and a french "brother" or "sister" who made sure that they saw aspects of French life that may have been missed otherwise. They went to the local high school with their "buddy", and had a week of vacation which included excursions to a monastary and to the historically famous Normandy Landing. These vacation days were left up to the planning of each students' family.

Each student was placed in a different home, but all were located in the same area—Le Mans in the Loire Valley. The advantage to this arrangement was that it forced the students to become independent of their language and cultural habits. Ms. Nourse states, "Their fluency increased due to plain necessity!"

When asked how she thought a trip of this nature affects a student, Ms. Nourse commented, "Our trip gave the kids an inside view of how people in a completely different culture interact. It had a positive affect on their level of independence, and it helped to build an adaptable, flexible, character."

Junior Doug Gammel summed it up with this comment: "It was a great privilege to experience life abroad and the culture there."

I couldn't believe it, my parents and I were actually driving to the world exposition in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. The thought of being alone for three weeks with my parents mortified me.

We started our trek on June 16th. I was crammed in the back seat of our Chevy Citation among pillows, cameras, and extra baggage. Time seemed to stand still as we passed through Oregon and Washington, a blur of trees and mountains. I kept wishing that we had flown.

We arrived in Vancouver, tired but full of adventure. For the next three days we were to see more than 80 international, provincial, territorial, state, and corporate pavilions capitalizing on transportation and communication. Over 21 million people came to the Expo between May 2, 1986 and October 13, 1986. The exposition was located on 173 Acres!!

The Canadian Pavilion extended into Burrard Inlet and the other pavilions were located on False Creek. The two cities were linked by a four minute ride on Vancouver's light rapid transit system.

If you like to take pictures, see people from different parts of the world, and spend money, then the Expo was the place to visit in 1986.

Giants stomp Broncos

Members without a club - members of Kounteract are now forced to Interact on their own time.

The New York Giants and the Denver Broncos battled it out in the Superbowl this year in Pasadena, Calif. The final score was: New York 33, Denver 20. In the first half, it looked like Denver might have had a chance, when the second quarter ended 10-9 with Denver in the lead. But the Giants came through, and scored three more touchdowns in the second half. The Broncos then scored in the fourth quarter to make it 33-20.

Interact Kounteracted

December 17th marked the end of Alameda High School's Interact Club. But the issue did not die.

"It's the timing that we question," said President Shannon Knepper. "This year we have been making a conscious effort to change the reputation which comes with the name "Interact".

The administration saw it differently. One teacher even remarked that the ban was "long overdue." Parents had called the school to complain about hazing and partying, both of which Knepper denied.

"We have not had an organized Interact activity outside of school with the exception of an 8 hour Saturday conference for Interact clubs of the Bay Area sponsored by the Rotary Club. Just because a member of Interact might have a party, doesn't mean that it's an official event. The club shouldn't be held liable."

Apparently, phone calls to Dr. Wheelwright and the Board of Education about the exclusiveness of the club and its destructive partying spurred the action of the administration, which met with the club on December 17th and declared it banned.

"We also question the method that was used to handle it." said Knepper. "They met with us and right out of the blue informed us that the club had been banned. We were, of course, ready to defend ourselves, but that they just told us that there was nothing more to say—that the decision had already been made."

"Just for the record", said Knepper, "We were one of the largest clubs in the school, and we enabled students who may not have been be likely to be involved in AHS to serve the community. We had already raised over $300.00 with the help of the Rotary Club for the school activity van."

To Go Or Not

The words "late" and "tardy" finally meant something this year as a new tardy policy was adopted at the beginning of the second semester.

Due to teacher complaints about tardies to classes, the new policy required a student to spend a one hour detention after school for two tardies in any class on any day during the semester. For every two tardies afterwards, the student was required to spend another hour of detention. After eight tardies, the student was issued a referral and his parents were called in for a conference.

There was a concern that students would rather cut than be trady to class, but Milt Werner, AHS vice principal said, "They will be the regular cutters, but the policy shouldn't create new cutters." Business Education teacher Jean Nolan felt that the policy was good but strict. She had allowed students to be tardy three times before the policy was adopted.

Some students felt that the policy was effective. Junior Carrie Clark said, "I've noticed people have been running to class." Freshman Gilbert Kim disagreed. "A student can't help being late once or twice," he said.

According to Werner, when the policy was put into effect, the tardies in first period classes dropped 50% during the first days. He also added that a similar policy was used at a school with 3200 students. It took one-and-a-half years to work, but it was successful.

Ship Ahoy Mate

Every three years a very important sailing competion is held. It is called the Americas Cup.

The races between Stars & Stripes, the American Candidate and Kookaburra III Australians boat was the culmination of three years of work. The computer designed boats were tuned to fighter plane perfection. The crews were conditioned to top physical & psychological demands.

Through often not in the limelight, the crews labored in the shadows, but their contributions were critical. Many of the American crewman had worked uninter rupted for nearly two years. In the final months of training their days began early in the morning. Even after sundown the team effort did not stop. For every hour of sailing, ther were 2½ hours of maitenance, most of it was done by overnight sail makers.

In the end, the Stars & Stripes teams hard work paid off. The U.S.A. had won the Americas' Cup.

D.C. Bound

"I couldn't believe it when I won! I knew it would be a once in a life time experience!"

Tracy Wright was selected as one of two representatives from California to the Senate Youth Program. The selection process included a screening process to narrow 227 applicants to sixteen. Then the sixteen were skimmed to four after a three day conference interview. Finally, Bill Honig reviewed taped interviews and applications, and selected Tracy from Alameda.

The seven day trip included internships with state senators, a White House tour, seeing the Senate and House of Representatives, and lunch in the Diplomatic room of the State Department.

The most important part of Tracy's trip was "learning how accessable our goverment really is. I made connections in D.C. that will help in the future."

Hello / Hola

Javier Escalona from Valencia, Venezuela was a new addition to the foreign exchange program at Alameda High School. When asked why he came to the United States he said, "I wanted to learn how to speak English."

"I guess that the biggest difference is the people. I still think that in no way are the people better or worse, so it means that I can't judge people and viceversa," remarked Javier when asked about the difference between Venezuala and the U.S.

Of course missing his family and friends was something he didn't really enjoy very much but he enjoyed being a part of our school.

Supervisors

"We work together as a team!" said Mrs. Brown. Mrs. Brown and Mrs. McCall served as the two new campus supervisors at Alameda High School. They were hired in December by the administration to help maintain school order and to enforce the no-food rule in the main building.

Mrs. Brown noticed a great improvement in the cleanliness of the school. "When I came, there was a lot of food and paper on the floor," she said. "Now I can see the carpet."

If any student was eating in the halls of the main building, he was first given a warning and his name was recorded. On the second offense, the student was given a referral for Saturday school.

Mrs. Brown moved from San Diego where she studied nursing at the San Diego City College. She hoped to be a school nurse in the future. School order was not the only thing she maintained; she also had to care for a family. Her hobbies included sewing and spending time with her children.

Mrs. McCall had been a substitute at various schools in Alameda. She specialized in computers, and like most students, she enjoyed going to movies and parties.

Teachers and students voiced mixed reactions about the campus superivsors. Some students felt that the campus supervisors picked on people. "They're not being fair," said one student. "They seem like guards at our school."

English teacher Chris Carman did not share the same feeling. "They seem to be working hard at what they do," he said.

The Wave Generation

Coke versus Pepsi: the war has yet to be settled. What, exactly is it that makes one soft drink more preferrable than the other?

It was just a matter of "taste". Yet, it was taste in a wide variety of commercials with skinny women clad in scandulous bathing suits or your favorite celebrity. Such commercials were used to express how fashionable it was to drink one soda rather than the other. After all, Pepsi was "the taste of the new generation and, then again Coke was "it".

"I prefer Pepsi over Coke because it has a finner taste and is far less carbonated," commented Tracy Desiderio.

"I like Coke because the commercials are better," informed an observant Don Irby.

So there you have it, safe to assume the lattermost drink. However, the battle will always remain tight; so needless to say, to each his own.

On September 24, 1986, Governor Dukemejain signed a California Bill AB 4085. It became effective January 1, 1987. It stipulated that "no school shall permit the smoking or use of tobacco or nicotine products, including but not limited to, cigarettes, cigars, minature cigars, clove cigarettes, smokeless tobacco, snuff, chew packets and betel by pupils of the school where the pupiles are on campus, or while they are attending school sponsored activities, or while under the supervision and control of school district employes." A suspension or expulsion could result from the posession or use of any of the above products, the bill further stipulated.

The passing and acceptance of the bill into AHS rules finally ended a previously ongoing debate over where smoking would be allowed, if anywhere, on campus. Suggestions evaluated had included smoking in designated areas, smoking only with posession of a registered "smoking pass", and total elimination of smoking on campus.

Distinct Achievement

Rising to New Heights

A faculty of 83, student body of 1500, a large battery of AP and CP classes, and a new computer checkout system in the media center-mix them all together and what do you get? The Alameda High School academic program. With enthusiastic new teachers and students, a freshman class of over 400, two new vice principals and a new counselor, Alameda High School's horizons were greatly expanded.

"It's a very challenging system," said junior Dave McKean. Spanish teacher Mrs. Miriam Barrios-Chacon said, "I've found that the teachers at Alameda High School, at least in the foreign language department, really go out of their way to further the curriculum."

Dr. Gretchen Wheelwright worked hard as Alameda High School's principal to develop a full co-curricular program. Yet even in the midst of vocal music, bands, journalism and a superior athletic department, she retained that academics are Alameda's strength.

An academic Spirit Week was planned by the faculty and the leadership class, which raised senior awareness and enthusiasm about the CAP tests. Overall, it was a year of proud accomplishments as test scores and self-esteem rose.

Hey! I did it - Vu Ta smiles as he works on his physics experiment. A new science class, Biology AP, was introduced this year.

Children of all ages

"It's hard to find the rooms!" cried Mrs. Pam Walters, mother of Monica Walters, freshman. Many parents felt the same way as the night of September 18, Back To School Night, wore on.

The night began in the cafeteria with a presentation by Dr. Gretchen Wheelwright explaining some of the new programs and introducing the new teachers.

Then the parents split up and followed their child's schedule with only five minutes to find the correct classroom. In the classes, each teacher explained the curriculum, answered questions, and received comments from concerned parents.

Many of the freshman parents found AHS to be quite different from middle school. "It's larger and more advanced socially," said Mrs. Sharon Manning, mother of Melissa Manning.

The large turnout showed that more than just a few parents were willing to commit two hours to their children.

"It was very positive. A lot more upper classmen parents were involved than usual," said Ms. Mary Curry, swimming coach.

Finishing its third year of publication, the 1986-1987 Oak Leaf staff, under the guidance of Nelson Soo Hoo, editor, and Judy Thompson, advisor, could look back on another successful year. Nelson felt that this year's Oak Leaf staff has a number of distinctive characteristics. "We are organized, involved, and a close-knit group. I think that's important to our overall sucess." When asked about the strengths and weaknesses of the Oak Leaf staff, Gloria Ahn, sports editor, commented on the experience that played a great role in the newspaper's success. "The continued effort of all our staff let us improve our quality with every issue."

10 things to do during a boring lecture

Suggestions from the AHS Student Body!

Miss Maybelline and the MaxFactors . . . - Tammy Blanchard beautifies during class and committee reports.

You've been through it at least 100 times before. The room is either stifling hot or freezing cold. You're probably hungry, and definately bored. And yet, your teacher drones on, lost in the lesson, absolutely oblivious to your suffering.

You look around the room, seeing that some of your classmates seem to be feeling the same way. Some are on the brink of sleep, others merely lost in a daydream. You notice at least a couple of students busily working on homework for another class.

Now the teacher has picked up intensity, and you realize that a major point must be coming up. But your instincts were wrong. The teacher has asked a question, and is searching the room for a victim to answer it. Remembering the humiliation endured by all who could not answer questions, you frantically search your book for last week's assignment, willing that there be some help on it.

People have begun to chatter in the back of the room, indicating that the end of the period is drawing near. You pay no attention it to it, focusing all of your attention on your teacher. You have shrunk visibly in your seat, trying desperately to be inconspicuous.

Then suddenly, miraculously, the bell rings - leaving you exhausted from panic and and worry, and promising yourself to pay attention to the next day's lecture!!!

Boring Lecture Pastimes

Heather Noble- "I study the pattern of the threads in the sweater/shirt of the person in front of me, or read the back of their chair."

Ann Adams- "I daydream about a Senior guy that I've never met."

Jennéa Weber- "I think about what I'm going to do after school."

Diane Toepfer- "Eat Carrots."

Guen Toste- "Work things out in my head, like a song or a dance combination."

Anna Oakes- "I write letters, talk to myself or anyone who will listen."

Julie Huh- "Play with my nails, but look up once in a while to make it seem like I'm listening.

Academic Excellence

Through thick and thin, bright and grim, PTSA and Academic Boosters kept up valiant support for faculty and staff. Thanks to them, the bond between students and faculty grew stronger and the amount of recognition for students skyrocketed.

"They're great organizations," said Jan Toepfer, PTSA president and Academic Boosters member. "We've tried to enhance communication and let parents know we're here."

"PTSA provided a nurturing role, "a role that needed to be filled" while Academic Boosters encouraged excellence and promoted student recognition. Their tremendous effort dramatically changed AHS' future outlook.

"Keep up the good work," said Betsy Gammell, Academic Boosters president. "We're behind you (the students) all the way."

Faculty of the round table Parents and staff unite at the monthly PTSA meeting, where everyone is encouraged to attend.

Zap the CAP - Senior Pride

Academic Spirit Week raises scores

The planned failure of the California Assessment Test (CAP) by the class of 1986 caused Alameda High school turmoil and embarassment. Determined that it would not happen again, faculty and students organized an "Academic Spirit Week" to encourage class pride and unity. The festivities began with the "Academic Door Competition." Each classroom was invited to prepare a door decoration with departmental theme to be judged for prizes. Judges included Dr. Searles, Superintendant, of Schools, and Dr. Newell and Dr. Daley, assistant superintendants. The winners received See's suckers.

The senior class officers and advisors prepared a skit to encourage participation on the test, and each senior was given a button which said "Zap the CAP - Senior Pride."

Monday was collegiate day, and a class competition was held to determine the class with the most students dressed in college paraphernalia.

Freshman were auctioned off to the seniors for $3.00 per person to make them lunch on the day of the CAP test. This was a freshman class fundraiser which earned over $150.

Tuesday, December 9th was CAP testing day, and the official "Be kind to Seniors day." Students and faculty wore their "Zap the CAP" buttons, and dressed in sweats to show that "We feel comfy at school." Orange juice and cookies were given to the seniors to make them feel cared about and to give energy.

At last, the testing was finished, and seniors reflected that the test was not nearly as hard as they had anticipated. Alameda High school faculty and administrators reflected happily on the week, and looked for scores to soar.

"Happy Capper!" - Jasin Carlen is proud of his accomplishment on the test.

"Intense Concentration" - Heidi Moss, Cord Ihling, and Palmer Owyound perform at their best on the CAP test.

"It's Over!!!" - Cindy Brooks is able to laugh after CAP testing is finished.

Happy to help- Librarian Johanna Winzenread and student aide Colleen Clark are ready to give assistance to confused students. Student aides assisted in mending and shelving books, and also used computers to catalog and print fines for overdue books.

Shhhhh!

Study pass program keeps it quiet during lunch

"It's working out really well," said library clerk Anne Beckman, referring to the library's new computer check-out system. Acquired in the middle of the 1986 school year, the system was not only used to check books in and out through the use of a bar code reader, but was also able to keep track of overdue or lost books and print out fines.

Operated on an IBM PC computer, the program proved to be very successful in the recovery of books at the end of the 1986 school year. "Only three books were not cleared by the end of the year, and only 25 textbooks were unaccounted for," said Johanna Winzenread, media specialist and head librarian.

Even with all the new technology, the library was still used for more conventional purposes, like studying. During the lunch hour an average of 20 to 30 people could be found, most of them finishing homework or reading. As Junior Noel Rivero stated, "I have a lot of homework. The library's quiet now, not like when I was a freshman." This peacefulness was due in part to the media center's policy of locking the doors up at 12:20 every day, and requiring a study pass to enter. "It's usually quiet, and I can concentrate well," said Junior Michelle Simpson, "I don't like to take home so much work."

Caught in the act - student aide Kantad Svensgard files the books. On the average there were usually four to five student aides working in the Media Center per period.

Yes, can I help you? Pausing from her typing, library clerk Anne Beckman smiles for the camera. Ms. Beckman has worked at Alameda High School for over 14 years.

What did you say your name was? - Mrs. Mabel Schenone tries to obtain the correct information from a student for a pass. Approximately 200 to 300 passes were processed per day.

Looking bored - Going through a large pile of old passes is Cynthia Salazar, an aide in the attendance office. There were approximately three to four aides working each period.

You again?

On any given morning 15 to 20 people could be found outside of the attendance office, shivering from the cold and the sensation of having just gotten up only one to two hours ago. Most people were waiting to either get passes to excuse them for the day before or an off-campus to let them leave later.

When asked why anyone would want to see kids everyday and hear their excuses, Mrs. Roberta Kitson, who has worked in the attendance office for 14 years, replied, "The job is fast paced. It really helps the day go faster." She added that she does enjoy seeing all the kids. "I like to talk to them, even yell at them," she said.

"The current (attendance) system is good, and improving every year," stated Mrs. Kitson, "The computers have really made a difference." It was predicted that by the end of the 1986-87 school year, the computer would be able to call an absent student's home, and inform his/her parents that the child was absent. By the end of the 1987-88 school year, it will be able to tell the parents which periods their child was absent from.

As years go by, excuses stay pretty much the same. "It's just the faces that change," agreed Mrs. Kitson. The most common excuse? "Probably, 'I overslept', but there have been some more creative ones," said Mrs. Kitson, "One kid told me that he had gotten up and taken the wrong bus. He had taken the one to San Francisco, and didn't realize it until the bus had passed the school. The bus hadn't stopped until it was two or three blocks past the school."

Still sleeping - Tony Wilkie waits in line at the attendance office. Don Heaton, Cindy Nelson and Teresa Birky look on.

Deliriously happy - Student aide Erin Lininger takes a short break to smile for the camera. Student aides assisted in picking up Scantron attendance lists from each classroom, and also filing and typing.

With only a second to spare - Mrs. Roberta Kitson looks up from her work. Processing 200 to 300 passes is "hard, but satisfying, work," she said.

Future Planning

Crowds of ambitious Alameda High School students crowded into the Media Center on October 22 to explore many of the educational options available to the college bound. College night was presented by the counselors in an attempt to alert students to all future alternatives, and to provide an opportunity for questions to be asked and answered. Some of the most frequently asked questions were about the admissions process, the academic program, financial aid and housing. The colleges represented were set up in booths and included College of Alameda, Brown University, Yale University, St. Mary's College and UC Berkeley. Those attending gained a lot of valuable insight. "I found College Night very informative because it answered a lot of the questions I had about requirements and the selection process," said Kim Stander. Although this night was beneficial to all, there was an uncertainty present and a sadness that comes with leaving high school.

Can I come in? - Phil Ricaford anxiously awaits the start of College Night.

Refreshments anyone? - Valerie Wire, Mr. John Maiers, and Judy Journaey take a break from obtaining college information.

Be all that you can be! - Elbin Chiu, Chris Edwards, and Jeff Tyler listen to information about the Army.

College Bound! - Matt Rodgers, Willie Anderson, and Cord Ihling sign up for further information.

Study Habits. Everybody had to study one time or another during their life, and there was no better time to do it than in high school.

Some people took studying more seriously than others. Take Julia Lew. She went home every day, sat down, and did homework. Compare Julia to her sister Susan, who, when asked what her study habits were, replied, "I'll let you know when I get some." (Susan, however, did manage to get her fair share of A's.)

Studying was an activity that not many of us could do without. A very popular time to study was right after dinner. This routine had the potential to pose a serious problem on Thursdays, national T.V. night, (because who could possibly miss the Cosby Show?), with due respect to Fridays, a popular test day for teachers everywhere.

Other popular times to study ranged from lunchtime or before dinner, right up to the five minutes before class started the next day.

Weekends were quite a different story. Of course somebody must have done their homework on Friday night, but the traditional slot reserved for homework was 10:30 pm Sunday nights.

And just what was the result of all this dilligent studying? The students in the top 25th percentile did better on the SAT than the top students at other schools, and our college freshmen did better than freshmen from other schools. "It's not perfect, but we're getting there," said Dr. Gretchen Wheelwright.

But, but, the dog ate it! - Melanie Coleman gives excuses, uh, explains to Ms. Denise Standiford why her homework is missing. What do you think Hemingway thinks of this one?

My hand is bigger! - Vu Ta compares hand sizes with Mark Finberg in chemistry class. Ken Gamble is acting as judge.

But the mud's dry by now! - Ms. Johanna Winzenread demonstrates her uncanny ability to enforce the "no feet on the cushions" rule.

Et vous pret aller? - Ms. Alicia Nourse presides over a class of nervous PEFLers (Proficiency Exam for Foreign Language).

Don't you think you should've done that last night? - Linda Sae Jang is assisted by Rachel Loui, both freshmen, on her Algebra homework. Homework finishing is a very popular lunchtime activity.

Please, no pictures! - Damon Haber, being his unusual modest self, holds up a timid hand to conceal his identity.

New Recruits

At the heart of the academics program at Alameda High School is of course the teachers. 1986 was no different, bringing many new faces to AHS' faculty. The science department acquired two new teachers, Victor Bluestone and Martha Quenon, and was also joined by returning teacher, Alan Bell. New in the math department was Dennis Knights, and joining the foreign language department was Spanish teacher Tom Rayman.

Mr. Knights held some different jobs in his years before teaching. For eight years he worked as a professional dancer, and as a marine machinist in the off-season. After his first year of "formal" teaching, Mr. Knights said, "Teaching naturally fell into its place in my life."

Mr. Rayman found that, "One can be very creative as a teacher in making every day different and challenging." During high school, one of Mr. Rayman's favorite subjects was Spanish, in which he later specialized and received a masters degree. Mr. Rayman also taught fencing at other schools, and was sponsor of the Ski Club.

Mostly hitchiking, Mr. Bluestone spent two years traveling around the world. Covering countries from Europe to Asia, he encountered difficulties in communication, yet found that science was a common denominator among all these diverse cultures. He decided to become a teacher in college.

Graduating from the University of Michigan with a Bachelor's Degree in Science, Ms. Quenon went on to the field of science research. Finding that she disliked pure research, she turned her efforts to teaching. She found that the best thing about teaching science was that she had the chance to communicate science to her students.

A graduate of the 1965 class of Alameda High School, Mr. Bell found that, "There's a certain amount of freedom one has (as a teacher),in creating a learning environment for the students." Mr. Bell also was the coach of the junior varsity girls' volleyball team.

Watch out!- Victor Bluestone anxiously anticipates destroying life as Martha Quenon diligently attempts to create it.

Ok, who's not here?- Taking roll, Dennis Knights, a new math teacher, looks up to check students.

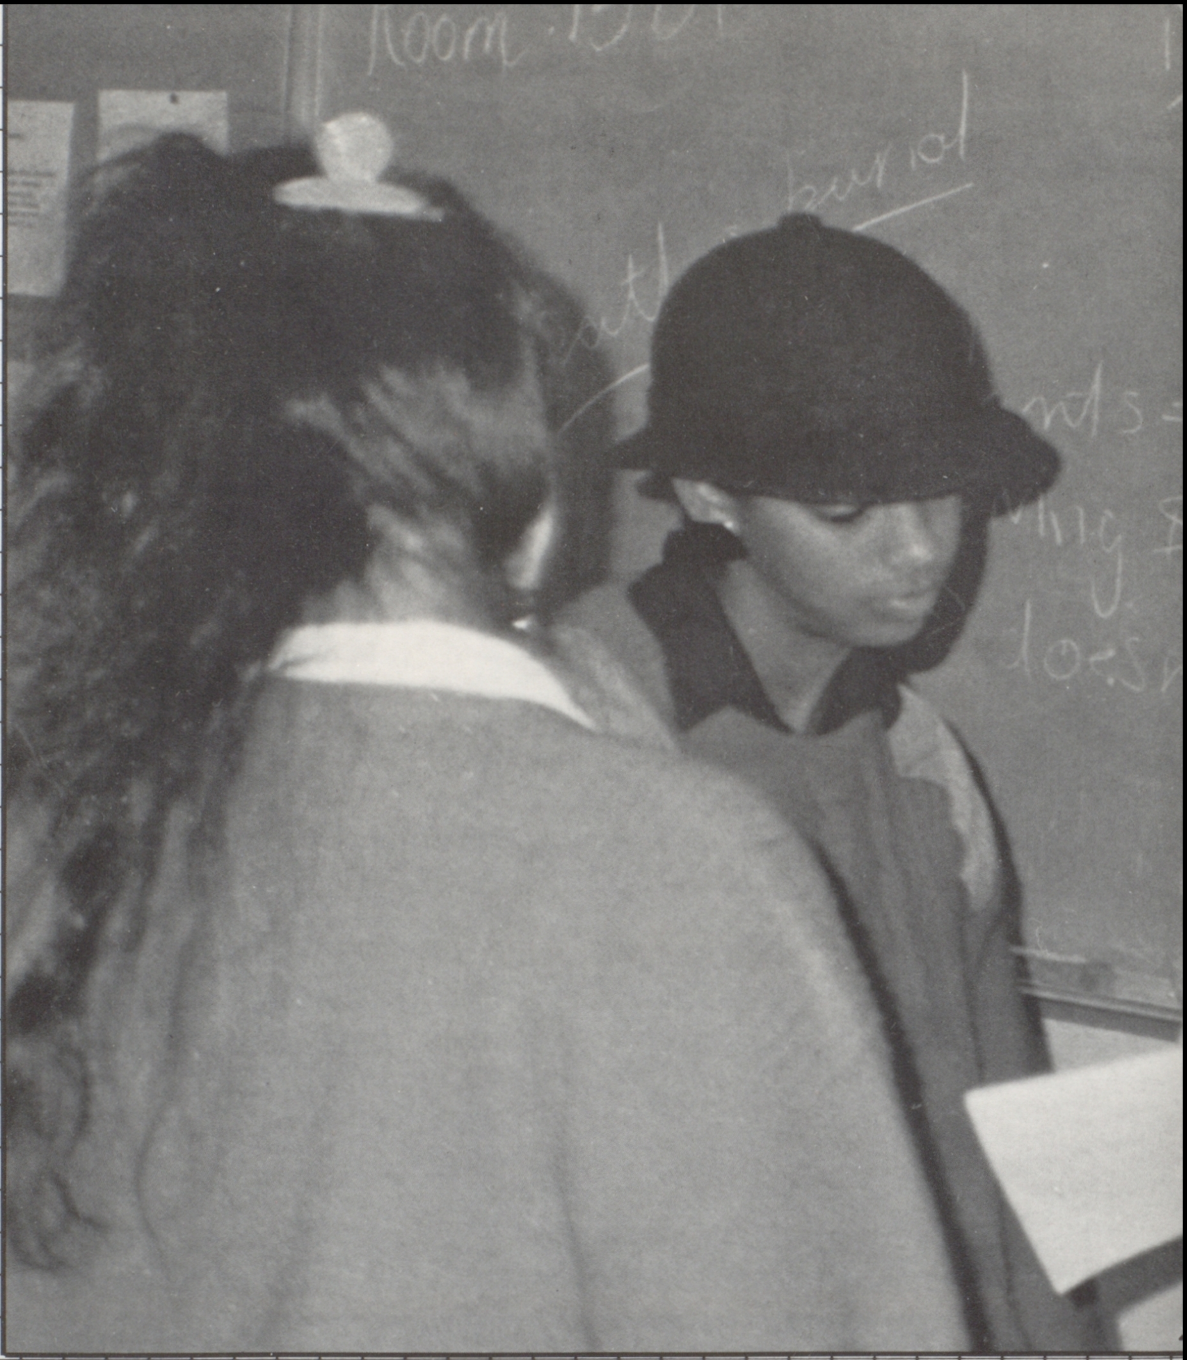
Glad to be back- Alan Bell, returning after a year's sabatical, relaxes in the library.



Noun or Verb?- Toni Fannin helps Lisa Mosely Junior with her composition.

Bard's Buddies

This year Alameda High received four new English teachers and a new ESL teacher.

They were Toni Fannin, Chris Carman, Phil Fisher, who also taught ESL and was a Junior advisor, and Julie Roemer who also taught French 1 and Ms. Bryant who taught ESL.

Ms. Thompson the English chair person had nothing but praise for the new teachers.

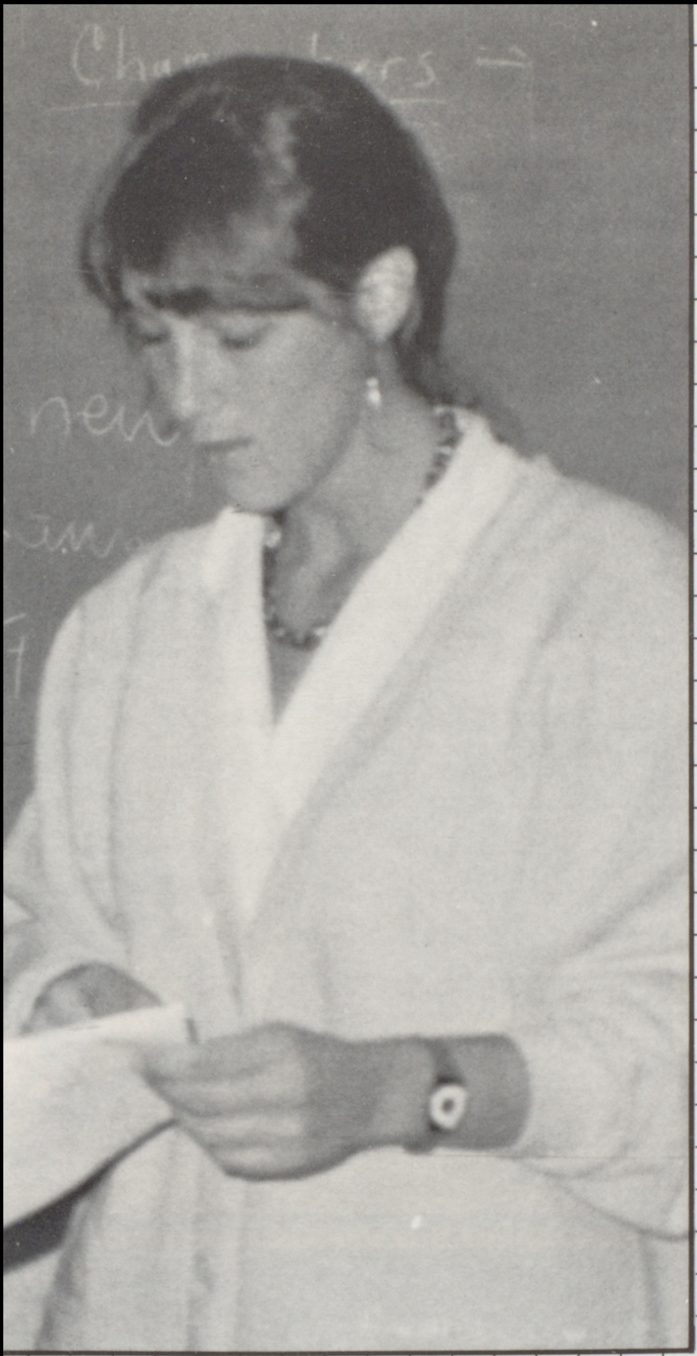
When asked what she thought about the new teachers she replied "They are very able, generally enthusaistic, well trained and well liked by most of the students. We got the best of the crop!" When asked was it difficult to chose the new teachers she replied "It was time consuming. They stood apart from all the rest!"

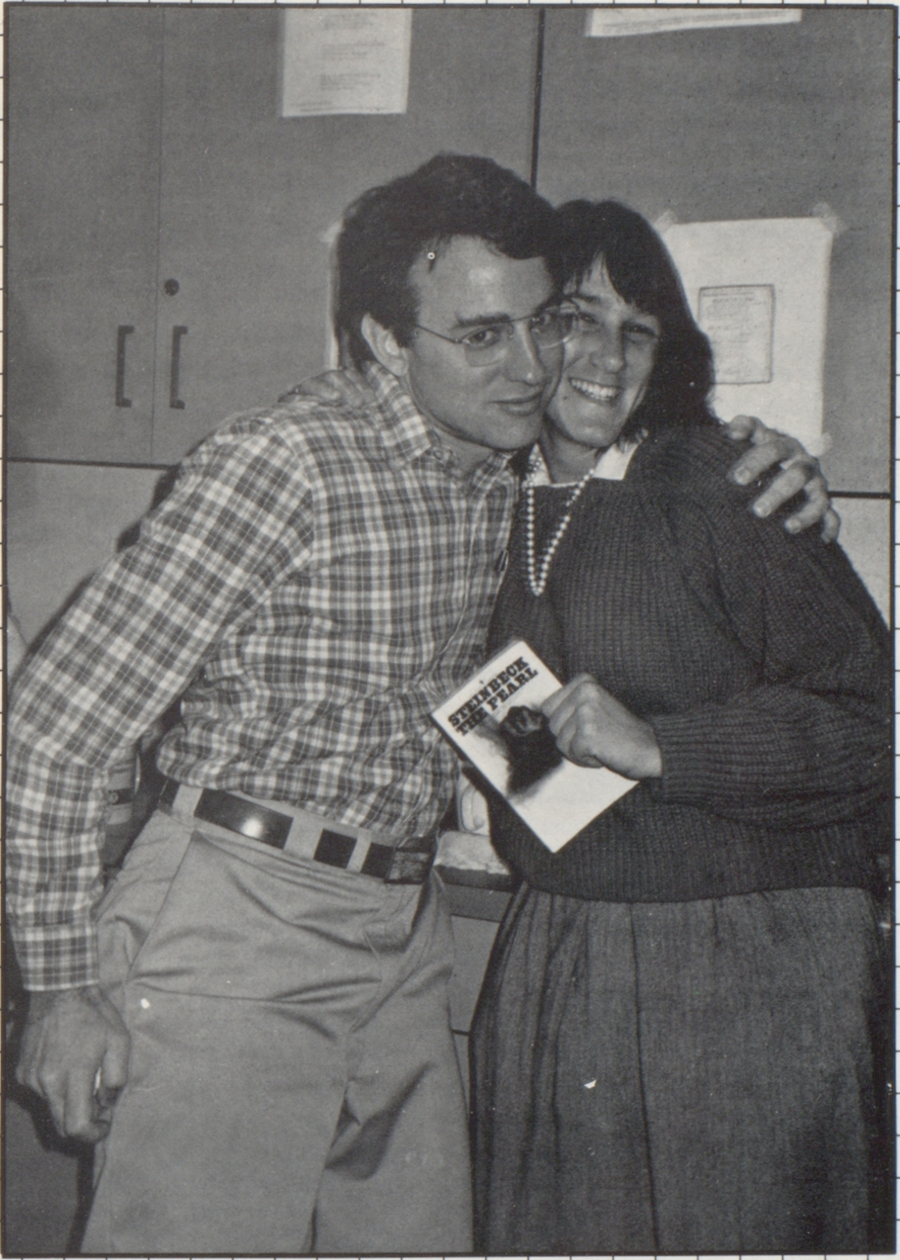
Ann Adams junior said, "I think Ms. Fannin is a good teacher because she gets involved with her students and because she cares about how we feel."

"Ms. Roemer is a very nice person and an excellent person." said Sunny Kubsiack.

"I really like Mr. Carman, I look up to him he's a great teacher." replied Jennifer Williams, junior.

Two of the English teachers Ms. Roemer, and Ms. Fannin were asked what they're favorite subject' in school were and they replied music for Ms. Roemer, and English for Ms. Fanin. "Most of the students here are very curious and willing to try and that makes for a wonderful working situation for a teacher!" said Ms. Fannin when asked what she liked most about A.H.S.





Breaktime - Julie Romer, Toni Fannin, Phil Fisher, and Chris Carman take time out to have their picture taken.

Steinbeck makes the heart grow fonder -Phil Fisher gives Toni Fannin an affectinate hug after finishing The Pearl.

Dedicated Educators

Dedicated to their jobs, all of the teachers at Alameda High School were important to making academics what they are—distinctive. Due to limited space not everyone could be featured. The two following teachers were seen as outstanding in their field.

Movies and Greek Lessons

It was 3:22 p.m. and Ms. Cassandra Coates still wasn't available for an interview. She was voluntarily working with two drama students going over A Midsummer Night's Dream. Items from Greek mythology and culture could be found around the room. On one wall, seemingly apart from the rest, hung a poster from Casablanca.

1986 was Ms. Coates' 14th year teaching at Alameda High School. In addition to teaching five English courses, she served as advisor to the junior class.

When asked why she started teaching, Ms. Coates answered, "Well, I was spending my evenings in San Francisco, talking about books and writing, and I decided to try teaching it. What I wasn't prepared for, however, was how much I was going to enjoy the kids."

Ms. Coates was amazed at the many different cultures that emerged from class discussions, especially in Alameda, "being such a small town."

Five years of Greek lessons and Ms. Coates is still taking more. "Greek is another thing I love," she said, "I'll never really finish taking lessons. I really enjoy them."

Well . . . - English teacher Cassandra Coates tells a curious student of mythology all about Helen of Troy. Ms. Coates developed and taught the English Mythology elective.

Smiling thoughtfully - Ms. Coates prepares to meet her next class. One of Ms. Coates' favorite comic strips is Life in Hell drawn by Matt Groening.

Making A Difference

After eight years as a criminalist in California and Oregon, Dr. Susan Paden felt that she wasn't making a difference. She went to crime scenes, collected evidence, blood, weapons and then analyzed them in the lab and testified in court, she was working with people that were already beyond help—those who were deceased. While working on cases, Dr. Paden saw a great many dead teenagers, as a result of suicides, accidents and even murders. She wanted to get involved before the fact, not after. "I wanted to help—to be there when the kids needed it. Who else," she asked, "besides maybe friends, sees a student more? The teacher."

Definitely dedicated to her job, Dr. Paden has even come ill to school. "There are always those days you don't want to do something," she conceded, "but it's part of your responsibility."

Laughing it up - Dr. Susan Paden enjoys a joke told by one of her students as chemistry student Andrew Gordon looks on. Dr. Paden taught two periods of Chemistry, two classes of Physics and a new course, AP Biology

Glad to be helping in her hometown - Dr. Susan Paden smiles for the camera. Dr. Paden was a graduate of the 1964 class of Alameda High School.

People

Distinct Possibility

Working towards the future

The people of Alameda High were very distinctive this year. Each section, from the counselors to the freshman, had their own unique style. The groups were different, but worked together to make Alameda High a better place.

The administration changed its appearance by welcoming two new vice principals to the staff, Milt Werner and Betty Ruark.

The counseling office also experienced a change, with a new head counselor, Arlene Hoshi, and a new counselor, Mary McManus. The counselors provided excellent support and guidence with colleges and careers, as well as student counseling.

The teaching departmant received new blood this year with the arrival of fourteen new teachers. AHS had one of the most experienced and credited teaching departments around.

The student body at Alameda was one of the best and most distinctive the school had seen in years. The students excelled in academics and social fields by putting extra effort into their goals.

With all of these forces working together toward a common cause, it was no wonder that the school year was so productive. From the halls of the school to the athletic fields, the 1987 school year will be remembered for a long time.

Fashionable Freshmen - Freshman Cathleen Laine, Annie Ventresco and Nic Hass show their own uniqe style. Sitting down on the job! - Senior Eric Suess takes a breather from school.

Taking Charge

Olé, Olé!

"The organization was the strongest aspect of the Fiesta. Debbie Brown did a great job," said Kelly Wandke, fall senior class president.

Each year the class of 87 sponsored a Mexican Fiesta in hopes of increasing their class funds. Although the fiesta this year wasn't as good as expected, the final profit was $400.00. The first fiesta that the class had was the most profitable because it was something new, different, and people could pick what they wanted to eat.

"We really didn't ask people to participate in the talent show, it's just whoever signed up," said Kelly Wandke. Said Fall Vice President Debbi Brown, "The talent show went well because we had a lot of great talent in the class!"

A Night to Remember

The gathering was at the Holiday Inn. The event was the famous Senior Banquet hundreds of seniors gathered together to reminisce.

The dinner was prime rib, followed by dessert and dancing. "It was great, but I was amazed that boys and girls sat at different tables," said Mr. Lubkin.

Music Masters DJ.'ed the dance in the banquet room. "The dancing was fun," said Tosaca Fasso

Crowded conditions-Senior girls enjoy the banquet. The banquet was held at the Holiday Inn.

Wantabe seniors-Faculty members join the fun of the banquet. Senior class sponsors were Ms. Gallagher and Ms. Soria.

The three amigos-Carl Abude, John Connolly and Bernard Balan pose for the camera. Bernard was on the varsity football team.

Class of # 1987

JUNIORS

CLASS OF '88

The song "Stand By Me" was the perfect thing to describe the junior class. They stood by each other through thick and thin. Some of the things they did the year of 1986-87 were a yard sale on January 17 and the Junior Prom on March 20.

"This year juniors are nice and they have matured a lot in the past three years," said junior Kim Thoreson. This was the hardest year for the juniors. They had to really start thinking about what college they wanted to go to and what they wanted to be in life. "The junior year has been a tough one but it was worth it because next year we'll be seniors," said junior Brad Sidwell.

Addicted to love.-Juniors Dinae Paiva, Sherry Cortez, Amanda Madrid, David Diaz and Norma Damon pose after winning the class competition.

Cinderella arrives- Kelly Thomas and Greg Ross arrive in style to the junior Prom.

A night to remember- Scott Jones and Patricia Ensley gaze into each other's eyes while dancing.

The royal family- Jennifer Olson, Michelle Simpson, Jenny Porter, and Ryan Jensen await to see who is king and queen.

Relaxing- Brian Carbis, Monique Turnbow, Deborah Schneider, Darryl Lee, Peggie Auyang, Penny Fong, and Keith Koo take time out from dancing to relax.

Gotta Dance- Scott Brown and Cyndee Yonker from South Lake Tahoe dance the night away.

Stand By Me

"When the night has come and the land is dark, and the moon is the only light you'll see . . . no, I won't be afraid just as long as you stand by me . . . " If you had been at the Berkeley Marina Marriott on March 20th, you would have seen the Junior class decked out in their finest and dancing to the theme of the Junior Prom "Stand By Me".

"I thought it was great. It was fun to see everyone in formals." said junior Damon Paiz. The Junior Prom was open this year so it gave everyone in the school a chance to experience the feeling of romance that only the Junior Prom can bring. "I'll remember this night forever," said junior Shay Barger.

CLASS OF '89

Spring politicians- Jay Yalung, ad-board member; Lisa Aoyama, vice president; Ray Kang, historian; Stacey Graves, treasurer; Karin Ingeman, and secretary; and Julie Chiu, ad-board member. Missing are Ricky Keiser, president; and Jeff Wright, ad-board member.

Fall politicians- Jeff Wright, ad-board member; Ray Kang, president; Stacey Graves, Spirit leader; Karin Ingeman, ad-board member; Lisa Aoyama, secretary; and Jill Freistroffer, ad-board member. Missing is Kelly Thomas, historian.

The Sophomore Class seemed to have a togetherness this year that was evident in all aspects of school activities. When sophomore Rob Swift was asked, what was the difference from being a sophomore than a freshman he replied, "About three levels on the social scale."

The sophomore class faced the pressure producing aspects of high school such as A.P. classes, higher standards and new discipline procedures with style and grace.

Forever Young

"Forever Young" was the theme for this years Soph-hop described the mood of the people who attended the dance. The Soph-hop was Alameda's version of the Sadie Hawkins dance sponsored by the Sophomore class. The girls paid for the dance tickets, and either take the guys out to dinner or make them dinner. So in other words the guys got to take time off and enjoy the night without having to worry about paying for anything.

Some of the activities that took place at the Soph-hop were the marriage booth where Rev. Robert Rodd or Rev. Joy Bramlette married couples. They then received a wedding ring and a marriage certificate. People also got their pictures taken by professionals for a small fee.

Best Friends - Junior Damon Paiz and Senior Nina Malo take time to rest after many long dances.

Hold Me Now - Junior Sarah Leslie and Matt Cunningham from Chabot College enjoy the night.

FRESHMEN

Please, no pictures!- Celine Defranco pauses for a moment in the spotlight.

CLASS OF '90

The Freshman Class of 1986-87 was definitely "distinctive". Fresh from the eighth grade they came into their first year of high school with anticipation showing on their faces. This eagerness didn't disappear within the first two weeks, but carried over into their academic efforts and extra-curricular activities.

The freshmen started right in on their fundraisers for the ever rising cost of senior activities in which they would be participating in the year 1990. The most amusing of these fundraisers was the take-a-senior-out-lunch on the day of their CAP (California Assesment Program) test.

The fight was long and hard, but in the end, the freshmen proved to be as much a part of AHS as the seniors.

Fall politicians- Meredith Russell, president; Michelle Gilchrist, Spirit leader; Tiffany Blanchard and Suzy Oram, ad-board members; Melissa Bray, Vice-president. Missing are secretary, Molly Luback; Shannon Howes, treasurer; Caprice Lacey, historian; and Mark Greer, ad-board member.

Spring politicians- Karra Mounsey, treasurer; Michelle Lim, vice-president; Tiffany Blanchard, ad-board member; Michelle Gilchrist, spirit leader; Melissa Bray, president; Julie Long, treasurer; and Alden Parker and Suzy Oram, ad-board members. Missing is Celine DeFranco, secretary.

Winners

Alameda High was one of the few schools in the East Bay that had a class for handicapped students. The students ranged from age 14 to 22 and this year one of the students turned 21.

The students went on field trips which included visits in the community that taught them how to use money, shop, and read warning signs. "Our goal is to make the students as independant as possible," said Patty Osborn, one of the teachers. The other teacher Blair Kassini, agreed, "We really look toward the future and how we can make them as capable as possible."

During the week, some of the students worked in the werehouse at Mervyns, Bureau of Electricity, and Mel's Bowl. The students also participated in the Special Olympics. They were Kieran Cooper, Kai Smith, Michelle Ma, Bog Hagan, Kenneth Karnes, and others.

This year, Kai Smith and Michelle Ma participated in 2nd period P.E.'s indoor soccer. According to Blair Kassani, "They really loved it!"

Does the cup go to the right or the left of the forks? - James Ham efficently sets the table at Mel's Bowl.

Where's the pencil sharpener? - Michael Bogdanos helps straighten up the bowling alley before a game.

I'll have a hamburger and fries - Arther Dansby enjoys a nice lunch at Mel's Bowl.

Kick that ball! - Michelle Ma attempts to score a goal for her team.

Three x Effort = Results

Principal Dr. Gretchen Wheelwright has been at Alameda High for the last four years. "Being a principal is so varied, it is never boring," she said. "And each year's a little better than the one before."

Interaction with people was an important ingredient of her job. She met with students, parents, and teachers daily and also attended board of education meetings. "Dealing with people is never mundane, because people are interesting," said Wheelwright.

Wheelwright was once a vice-principal for six years. After obtaining her administrative credential, she entered the doctorate program at the University of California, at Santa Barbara and received her Ph.D. in administration.

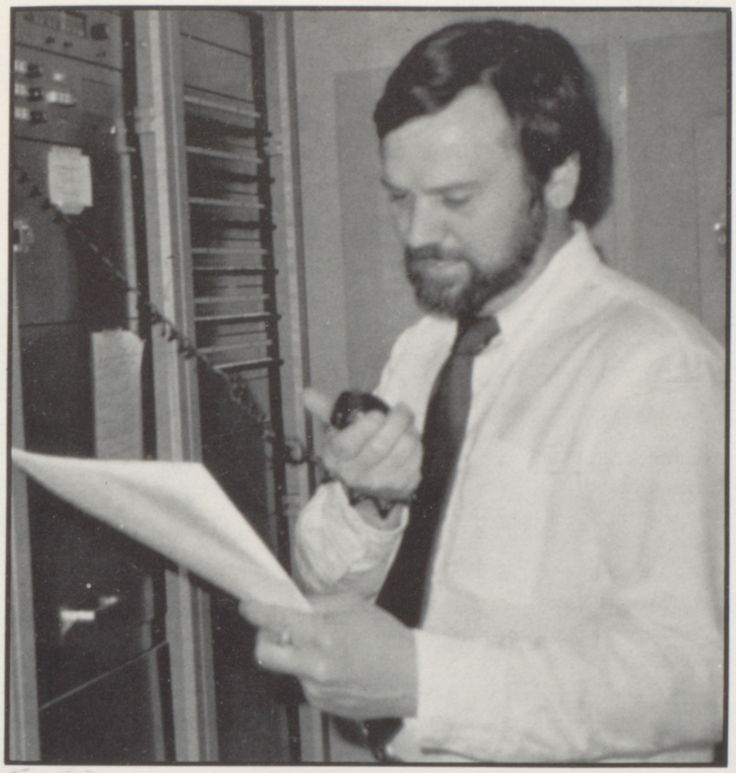
She will not likely seek a promotion to the district office and away from the school, because she is happy where she is.

Can I help you? - Dr. Wheelwright is ready to offer advice.

What shall I do next? - Junior Oshi Jauco works with the Eureka system as Dr. Wheelwright observes. The Eureka system helps students choose jobs.

On Line - Dr. Wheelwright spends some of her day chatting with parents on the phone. Interaction with the community is essential to her job.

Pardon the interruption - Mr. Werner informs students about upcoming events over the PA system. Werner used to be a science teacher and has taught biology, chemistry, algebra, and trigonometry.



New to Alameda High this year was Milt Werner, administrative vice-principal. His job oversaw the school attendance, the master calendar, and the school bank.

Coming from James Logan High, Werner was impressed by the atmosphere of AHS. "Just by walking down the halls the first couple days, everybody was very nice, polite, and friendly," he said.

Werner has lived in Alameda for 18 years with his family of four children. His job often required him to spend many hours away from home.

He enjoys camping and back-packing with his family. He also likes to jog, but admits that inconsistent. Werner hopes to become a middle or high school principal within five years.

More paper work? - Mr. Werner receives more forms from Senior Debbie Brown.

How are you? - Mrs. Ruark is always eager to meet parents.

Betty Ruark was not an unfamiliar face to AHS, but she was new as an instructional vice principal. She was principal for the district summer school for the past two years and was head of the special education department at AHS.

Her job involved evaluating teachers, overseeing student teachers and substitute teachers, and discussing school affairs with students and parents.

Ruark enjoys photography and has even shot weddings for friends. She likes hiking at Yosemite, reading, writing, and listening music.

Overall, Ruark felt that this year was a very good first year as instructional vice-principal. "This has been the most positive year I've experienced in my last five years here,' she said.

Time for that Christmas Spirit - Taking a break from her job, Mrs. Ruark and Junior Shanti Nelson help decorate the school Christmas tree.

Help Me!

Many changes occured in the counseling office before the 1986-87 school year started. Arlene Hoshi after 19 years as a counselor at Alameda High became the head counselor. Mary McManus joined the staff as a new counselor.

Another addition to the counseling office was the Eureka computer system. This computerized information center gave an interest inventory about careers, jobs and colleges. The interest inventory was based on questions answered by the students. The students were able to obtain a print out of all the information or just a portion of it.

The sophomore practical education classes used the system as a part of the class. The juniors and seniors were able to work with their counselors and the computer on a one to one basis. "I think it's a good idea because it informs the students on jobs, colleges and other information you might need when you get out of high school," said Junior Ann Adams.

Next Please!-Ms. Ellis prepares to answer a question. Ms. Ellis is instrumental in running the counseling office.

What an excuse!- Ms. Ellis and Ms. Hoshi go to confront a student. The counseling office is always there to help students.

Hi there! Arlene Hoshi greets the Acorn photographer. Ms. Hoshi is the new head counselor taking over form Mr. Bartley.

Who me? Ms. Porter is surprised by the photographer. Claire Porter like the other counselors helps kids decide what to do.

New kid on the block- Ms. McManus takes time out to smile at the camera. Ms. McManus is the new counselor to replace Mr. Bartley.

Athletics

Physical Distinction

Capturing the Skill

This year's athletic teams hit, passed, ran, and spiked their way through the new Golden Bay Athletic League. Some teams did manage to hit the peak of victory while others gained valuable experience and friendship.

After the Alameda County Athletic League was dissolved at the end of the 1986 school year, Alameda High along with five other schools formed the GBAL. Although some of these schools' populations were twice the size of Alameda, and the Catholic schools had the advantage of having no geographic boundary, most of the sports fared well against the tough competitors.

"We were able to compete in the sports," commented Athletic Director Dave Fairfield, "and not be blown away."

After school practices and workouts were strenuous and demanded hard work. "It's good competition," said Terry Flock, a member of the water polo team, "but it takes a lot of hard work."

Perhaps the most important element contributing to the athletic program was the strong support and cheers from the student body.

"It's a good athletic program," summed up Scott Brown, a cross country and track team member. "The school is behind most of the sports and is always spirited and ready to cheer them on."

Cheer on! - Ed Fuentes, Dan Currid, and Ryan Teichert capture the winning spirit.
Complete concentration - JV volleyball player Gertrude Shiu focuses her attention and prepares to serve the ball.

Unity Makes the Spirit

Once again, the Varsity football team finished off another great year with a 7-3 record overall in the GBAL.

"When we entered this new 3-A League everybody expected us to be losers, but the Hornet team of '86 came back!" reflected John Connolly.

With key offense players, Paul Seeley, Ken Gamble, and Gerald Jones; and defense players, Junior Taamu, Art Thoms, Derek Taner, and Ryan Jensen, the team won one of its best games over El Cerrito with a 40-14 score.

Coach Dan Reynolds said he and the other coaches were really pleased with this year's team. He had hoped that the team would have won their last game so that they could have gone to the playoffs. The team, however, lost to Richmond with a score of 14-21.

The 1986-87 team displayed extreme unity and spirit, and they didn't lose hope. Even when they were behind in any game, they would come together to defeat all odds.

Caught in a Fever

It was a breezy Friday afternoon. The massive crowds of people had settled in their seats as the players began warming up. Who would win? Would Alameda lead us to victory?

The questions were answered when halfback Sean Steffen scored a touchdown for AHS, starting the football rolling through point after point for a final score of sixteen to eight. Alameda massacred the Jets!

This year was the Frosh team's best since 1984. Working their way through seven games was difficult, but AHS managed to maintain spirit in order to battle the odds.

Although the grand total of the AHS Frosh football team's winnings was only one, it would not have been possible without the support of the student body and the motivation of the football players.

The football season was hard on the AHS Frosh team, but what mattered was that the players did their best.

Trained to Tackle

"The thrill of victory, the rare agony of defeat" was the Junior Varsity football team's motto for the '87 season. Their balanced attack and excellent quarterbacks as well as their superb passing prevailed with a grand total of seven wins, two losses, and a single tie. With a star player like Mike Ross, #26, who scored 14 touchdowns for AHS, there was no stopping the unbeatable JV team.

"I think that football is the most exciting sport, and I'm glad I had a chance to participate on a such a successful team," commented wide reciever David Setton. David stated that although the team's strongpoint was passing, the team was still very young and needed experience.

Needless to say the players were at least good enough to stop the opposition with over five hundred unassisted and assisted tackles.

This football season was excellent for the JV team with a comeback from last year's record of zero wins.

Braving the GBAL

The bell rang at 2:45 p.m., ending a typical day for everyone except the AHS Women's volleyball teams. From the end of August to mid-November, these young women endured a vigorous practice.

"I have bruises here and a bruise there," complained Laura Woudstra.

"We work together as a team!" exclaimed Alle Yeung. The varsity team played under the leadership of Team Captains Oshi Jauco, Shanna Soderlund, and Ho Aeng Yoon.

"The JV team is made up of mostly freshmen, and sophomore and juniors starting their sports career later in life," Coach Alan Bell stated. The JV team played under the leadership of captain Susan Cheng. "The season was a learning experience and the JV team members showed a good attitude," Bell added.

A.H.S. Water Polo Splashes On

"They are a very energetic team, and if they use their energy the right way, they'll be a good team," replied Manager Melissa Kangeter when asked how she felt toward the water polo team.

According to Coach Robert Rodd, the team was a fairly young and one of the best in terms of swimming ability. Water polo season was one of the shorter seasons, lasting only two months. In that two months the team had to be in top physical shape and to also prepare mentally for the grueling competition. "I feel that we are a good team with great leadership qualities," said Junior Jimmy Philipsen.

In the history of Alameda High's water polo teams there have only been four girls. This year Erica Philipsen was the first freshman to join the team. "It's pretty cool that she's playing water polo when no other girls are," said Sophmore Eddie Gambetta. Mr. Rodd said that there was no distance between Erica and the rest of the team. She was one of the guys.

The water polo team had three captains. They were Seniors Cord Ihling, O.J. Olson and Artemio Dongon.

Building Up an Advantage

Facing two of the toughest teams in Northern California, Coach Dave Fairfield saw this season as a "building year" for the men's tennis team.

With the advent of new Golden Bay Athletic League, the team played against larger schools, complying with the "1500 students or more" rule of the new league.

Even with the increased level of competition, Coach Fairfield felt quite confident that the team would still be able to "pull some real upsets".

"The team is really solid with some returning veterans and a few new stars," he said. Among these were Junior Mark Scates, ranked number one on the team, and Freshman Felix Gomez, new to the team.

Coach Fairfield saw a lot of potential in these two players and predicted that they had a "good chance of taking the North Coast doubles title."

Hornets' Spirit Runs for Victory

"We're just like a family. You can make some of your closest friends on the cross country team," commented Valerie Wire when asked to sum up her feelings about the 1986 team.

The team set a high goal at the beginning of the three month season. The goal was to be in the upper half of the Golden Bay Athletic League.

Most of the cross country team members took sixth period physical education in addition to practicing after school. They ran between four and five miles a day not including practicing speed work.

Zsofia Kondor and Adrienne Thompson were the top runners on the womens' team. The men's team top runners varied from meet to meet. Steve Archini, Scott Brown, Marc Morales and George Souza each excelled in different meets.

More Than Just A Team

"Hornets! Hornets!" came the deep chant from the men's varsity basketball team. Out they ran, feet thundering against the gym floor. Their warm-up began with a series of right and left-handed lay-ups, and then shooting practice.

"I'd like to see the team improve in individual skills. As players get better, they become better performers," confided Head Coach Felix Douglas.

When asked what would be a satisfying year, Douglas replied, "To see Alameda basketball grow in a positive direction. We are more than winning and losing; we're about pride and representing our school and ourselves." He went on to say that he hoped the team members would get out of basketball what they might get out of a job - responsibility.

"Do the best job you can and you'll be praised. Give it your best or it's not worth your time," said Douglas.

Whatever the men got out of high school basketball, Douglas aimed to make sure they at least would be able to use basketball as part of life and to develop a tradition that others can follow.

Carrying Spirit into the GBAL

"We try our best!!" smiled Senior Alisa Gierloff when asked about the 1987 Women's Varsity Basketball team. Gierloff unfortunately injured her knee during the season but she was just as important to the team as were the other members.

According to various team members, they all had high expectations for the year and felt that they worked well together as a team. Like the other sports teams, this was their first year in the Golden Bay Athletic League which was a very hard and grueling league.

Their practices lasted from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. everyday with team members staying later to practice shooting or getting individual help from Coach Brad Thomas. Their workouts were demanding, consisting of much running to keep them in shape for the games against such teams as El Cerrito and Carondelet.

The squeak of rubber against the gym floor. The thump of basketballs. The heavy beat of the Beastie Boys introduced the Junior Varsity Basketball Team as they began their drills, psyching themselves up for the upcoming game.

It was a brand new year for the JV Basketball Team as they started working on there rapidly improving skills. Coach Frank Yamasaki had mixed feelings about the team, and, although they weren't playing as well as last year, the men's team was "playing to their ability with a lot of close games." When asked about the players' potential for the future, Coach Yamasaki simply replied with a grin, "It's hard to say; by the end of the week there will probably be plenty of movement to the varsity team!"

With star players like junior Joe Frenchwood, #32, #14, Jeff Arndt, junior, how could the JV Team go wrong?

Winning Spirit

What did the numbers 11, 34, and 30 have in common? They were all lucky! The year was good for every member of the Women's JV Basketball Team, including Sylvia Balogh, #11, Kate Morris, #34, and Helen Park, #30. But it wasn't luck that brought the Hornets through each victory. It was agility and teamwork that led AHS to the second place slot within the league.

AHS's Junior Varsity team was equipped with the finest players such as rebound leader Robin Derickson, #35, and Sarah Hawkinson, #25, who was known as the top JV female scoring leader. Lisa Thomas and Nikki Freeze, both excellent defense leaders also contributed to the talent that gave the team its winning reputation. But the real talent was not in their actual skills, but in themselves, because it was in themselves that Alameda High found that winning spirit.

Kicking Back on the Field

"This is going to be a great year. I expect that we will be in the playoffs and maybe even go the North Coast," said Peter Nguyen about the AHS men's soccer team season.

The team did well in the pre-season by defeating St. Elizabeth (4-0) and San Leandro (2-0). They expected tough competition in the season with Salesian and De LaSalle.

The men were an enthusiastic team and had great expectations for the season. They hoped to at least get to the playoffs and perhaps even take the new Golden Bay Athletic League. This was the team's third year in existence and it continued to improve from their first season under the coaching of Mike Frauenfelder.

Said team member Dave Freistroffer about the soccer team, "Soccer at AHS has continued to improve since its re-inception two years ago."

Going For the Goal!

Yells and shouts accompanied the daily practice of the 1986-87 women's soccer team. This team was really motivated according to Coach John Maiers and he felt that their determination was seen in their games as well as in their practices.

The season started with the November 18th game against Newark. With the season opened, the outstanding players on the team stood out. Coach Maiers recognized Leila Haber, Cindy Brooks, Kristen Lyman, and Gretchen Skillman as four of the best players on the team.

This year's soccer team competed in the Golden Bay Athletic League and also played against schools outside the league. Coach Maiers was confident that this was the best year that the soccer team had ever had.

Funk, Elizabeth Rawlins, Dillan Horodko, Coach John Maiers.

Geronimo!- Reaching for height and distance, Dave Willer leaps into the air to make a strong, firm landing into the sand pit.

Ready, set . . . - Concentrating on her form, B.J. Funk anticipates the sound of the starting gun before dashing off to break the ribbon.

Practice Makes Perfect

Last year, the track team placed second in both the boys and girls division in the ACAL. This year, Coach John Maiers said that the team was better but the competition was more difficult.

Comprised of 54 team members with 20 returning lettermen, the track team held its practices at the College of Alameda from 2:30 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. Unlike last year, members were required to take sixth period athletics.

Practices began with a three-fourth mile jog with stretching and flexibility skills. Each member then concentrated on his particular event.

Maiers, who stressed conditioning and workouts for improvement, was pleased with the team. "This year's team is the best group of athletes in attitude and hard work," he said.

The feeling was mutual for some members. "Mr. Maiers cares a lot for the team and he encourages the team," said Keith Koo.

That extra stroke

The 1987 women's swimming team particapated with great strength and vigor this year. They entered into the new Golden Bay Atletic Leage with hopes of tacking the championship. After sweeping through the Alameda County Athletic Leaugue the past three years. The GBAL provided new opportunities and challenges for the team.

This year with the longtime coaching leadership of Ms. Mary Curry and the team leadership of Kelly Wandke and Jill DeHann the team excelled in the sport of swimming. With a good balance of four classes they provided experience and leadership.

When asked why she joined the women's swim team, Junior Marisol Schultz replied, "The thought of keeping in shape and the guys swim team." The women's swim team was a fun loving group but got down to business when it counted.

Cutting into the Water

"We will try our hardest to do our best in a very tough team league," commented Coach Robert Rodd when he was asked about the 1987 men's swimming team.

The team was a newcomer to the Golden Bay Athletic League, but the members felt that with hard work and determination they could succeed.

With high hopes for the season, the men's swimming team started their practices in February in order to get in shape for the long road ahead of them. Practices consisted of morning and afternoon workouts that included rigorous exercises. These workouts trained the team to reach their top physical condition.

Coach Rodd looked forward to an exciting season with strong swimmers such as Seniors Cord Ihling, Artemio Dongon, O.J. Olson, and Chris Folso Junior Terry Flock was also a promising favorite who held many school swimming records.

Out to the Ball Park

The Men's Varsity Baseball team really showed its merit. The team's season was filled with ups and downs creating an exciting season for players and spectators.

When the baseball team started the season, they began with a bang by avenging a sore loss to St. Mary's by beating the team 8-0.

This year's team was led through the season with great experience from Seniors Eric Schullstrom and Kent Doan. The Hornets also had great raw talent with Sophomore Marcus Martinez in their lineup.

The Alameda High Hornets had great coaching skill behind them with Head Coach Don Murray and Assistant Coach Steve Yamasaki. From the coaching staff, the Hornets were given great tactics and strategies mixed in with the usual practice which comes from years of experience.

Teamwork Makes the Team

Strike two bases were loaded. Tension was in the air at the opening game of the Women's Varsity Softball team.

The softball hit the bat and sped out far into left field, Suddenly, the player looked up, dropped the bat, and pounded her feet frantically against the dusty softball diamond as she raced toward first base . . .

"Everyone on the team knows that we're going to have to work together to be competitive in our new league," said softball player Tracy Desiderio. "When you have people who are willing to sacrifice independence, then you know you have a team willing to work together."

From the softball diamond to the bench, their comradery shone through to encourage one another as they played not as individuals, but worked as a single, powerful unit. The winning combination of course included the players, but they owed a lot to their coach, Felix Douglas, and his assistants, Brad Thomas and Eddie Ruiz.

Perfecting their Form

"It's an art . . . not many people recognize it as such, but it really is!" said Amin Sohrabi. "It doesn't get much publicity. We're trying to show how graceful it is."

The Alameda High School Diving team was a subdivision of the swimming teams. In competition, the diving scores were combined with the swimming scores, and thus the team was an important factor in the swimming meets.

Coached by Robert Rodd and Mary Curry, the members of the diving team were intensively trained to dive with a perfect, graceful form.

Valerie Wire, a beginner diver, said, "I learned that I had to work for this. It really doesn't come naturally."

They Had That Winning Feeling

During the summer and the fall Varsity and JV lines attended cheerleading camp in Sacramento where they made quite an impression.

The fall pom-pon line received a "superior" banner for earning top marks by dancing to "I'm Your Man." The spirit lines received a "Spirit Stick" for being rated as one of the most spirited schools at camp. Both cheerleading and pom-pon lines received "Superior" trophies.

"The main point of camp was to teach us new routines. We all benefited a lot from it," said Michelle Simpson, a Varsity cheerleader. The JV's had a busy year, cheering at JV football games.

A new addition to our school were the new frosh cheer and pom-pon lines. These lines cheered our frosh basketball team on to victory.

Score, Score, Score!- Cheerleaders Stacy Graves and Sheri Seto cheer their team to victory.

Pom-pon heads: Rosalie Felix, Sheri Seto.

The Spirit Shone Through

Hard work ruled the lives of the spring spirit lines. They were required to cheer at all basketball games, and perform rallies.

But the most demanding part of spring was tryouts. All spirit lines lines conducted clinics for the hopeful students to familarize them with the cheer routines. Then the lines held mock tryouts After the winners were picked, the spring lines helped the newly elected lines get ready for their introduction rally.

"We have to work so hard to equal the fall because they have all summer to perfect their routines. Basketball comes so quickly, we hardly have time do do anything, especially during finals. But it's fun," said Tesha Holt Holt, a varsity Cheerleader.

Sitting Pretty - Debbie Brown, Alisa Moraes, Rosalie Felix, Sheri Seto flash winning smiles.

J.V. Heads- Kim Blankenship, Patty Fernandaz.

Varsity Pom Pon: Tosaca Fasso, Kim Stander, Sheri Seto, Rosalie Felix, Stacy Graves, Gretchen Anderson.

With Determination Comes Success

Carol Seto Rides the Waves

For freshman Carol Seto, water-skiing is both a favorite pasttime and a serious sport. Her specialty is barefoot water-skiing in which the feet serve as ski boards. In this way, the skier isn't limited and has more freedom to perform tricks and turns.

Competing in two categories, trick skiing and wake skiing, with fifteen girls from other states, she was crowned as the 1986 national girls overall champion. "It was a neat way to end off the season," she said.

Ironically, Seto was not naturally attracted to the sport. "I hated it at the beginning," she commented, "but then my father started taking me to tournaments. That's when I started getting into it, competitively."

Like many other athletes, Seto had to work herself from the bottom up. Her first tournament was the regionals, three years ago, and at her first nationals, she "zeroed out". However, her father, a water-skier himself, supported and urged her on. Now she trains and competes every summer with Coach William Farrell.

Seto will continue competing in tournaments and trying to retain her national title, but her goal lies in the future, in hopes of representing the United States as a world team member.

Making a splash! - Carol Seto demonstrates how a trick is done.

Top of the world - Seto tops a three person pyramid.

Breaking loose - With strong determination, Rob Swift separates from the rest of the pack.

Castranovo Glides on Ice

Most students wake up at seven o'clock in the morning, but for junior Samantha Castranovo, waking at 4:30 a.m. is not unusual. Castranovo belongs to the St. Maritz Club and practices ice-skating from 5:30 to 9:30 in the morning at Berkeley Iceland. She started at age eleven, and by twelve, she had adopted it as a sport.

"I like it," she exclaimed. "It's athletic, but it's also artistic."

Castranovo is currently working up to her senior level where she will compete in national tournaments. In order to attain senior level, she must pass eight figure skating compulsories. Ice-skating consists of two categories, the skating compulsories and the free skating.

"A lot of people don't know about the compulsories," said Castranovo, "because it isn't often shown on television. Only the free skating is."

Working with her coach Monte Tideman, Castranovo has competed locally. This year, she plans to pass her sixth and seventh compulsories.

Encore! - Samantha Castranovo makes a spectacular finish to her skating routine. She plans to compete for a national rank by 1990.

What grace! - Castranovo flows across the ice in her compulsories.

Future star - Castranovo skims through the air with a big smile.

Swift Pedals towards the Top

"I started off on a little bike, riding around town, but I destroyed it by colliding into a parked car," said sophomore Rob Swift. After that incident, Swift received a new bike and he is now a racing cyclist.

Swift was part of a racing club at Island Bicycle. During the racing season which starts in the spring and ends in late fall, he would ride 40-50 miles a day in the Berkeley and Oakland Hills to improve his power and speed.

Swift hoped to perform a triathalon series which consists of a one-half to two mile swim, a 20 mile bike ride, and a 10 kilometer run.

As for biking, Swift doesn't know if he wants to become an international racing star. "I'm going to keep biking," he assured, "because it keeps me fit and it's something I like to do."

The wheels turn - Swift streaks across town.

Clubs and Organizations

Social Distinction

Meeting in familiar places

When we think of clubs at Alameda High, most of us think of the sharing of a common interest, organization, teamwork, togetherness, and just having fun. At our school there was a variety of clubs and organizations to please all the different kinds of students.

This year we had many service clubs for example, the Keywanettes which were dedicated to helping our community. California Scholarship Federation (CSF) was an academic club for students with an outstanding GPA. For club-goers who were interested in certain subjects such as science, math, and foreign languages there were specialized clubs. We even had a club for future politicians called Junior Statesmen of America (JSA).

For sport-oriented students, there were many organizations too. These include Ski Club, Sailing Club, Jujitsu, and our newest addition this year, Fencing Club, headed by Mr. Knights.

Our school provided a lot of special interest clubs, such as Fashion Club, Art Club, Speech and Film Clubs, Video Club, and the Multi-Racial Club, to name a few.

This school year was very prosperous and eventful for clubs and organizations. We had a lot to be proud of!

What's Cooking???

Entering room 733 every Wednesday afternoon, Asian Club takes the place by storm. The atmosphere is electric -pulsating with energy and life. With a membership of over 70 students the group consisted of many unique people: Chinese, Filipinos, Koreans, Japanese, and many more. Anyone was welcome to join in the many activities.

The first semester officers were Fallon Lim, president; Christopher Chin, vice president; Aaron Wong, Recording Secretary; Susan Lee, corressponding secretary; and Daphne Chin, Treasurer directed the spirit of the members into fundraisers and exciting activities. They held car washes, candy sales, luncheons, gift check sales and gym nights and parties.

For the second part of the year the officers were Kelley Chinn, president; Aaron Wong, vice president; John Ro, recording secretary; Dora Lee, corresponding secretary; and Andy Tsai, treasurer. These officers have kept up the spirit and close bond of the members with ski trips up to Squaw Valley and also plans for an adventurous end of the year trip.

In Tune

Since January eight special girls met diligently at 3:00p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays to exercise their finely tuned vocal chords.

Affectionately called "Sharon's little group," the Girls' Ensemble performed countless times for assemblies and exhibited their talents for the Tahoe Choir and the Music Department for the Spring Concert.

The elite group of altos and sopranos, directed by Junior Sharon D'Cunha, had the chance to sing with some of AHS's finest.

"The Girls' Ensemble is a fantastic opportunity for more experience," said teacher Armen Phelps, as he grinned in admiration. "I hope that any student could be as proficient."

Horowitz would be put to shame! - Sharon D'Cunha instructs Laura Woudstra on the piano with the piece "Meow."

My lines, my lines! - Sue Kim (third from right) strains to hit the notes in one of their favorite choir drills.

A Close Up View

On Sunday morning February 8, 1987, ten Alameda High Students and one advisor boarded a plane for Washington D.C. Nine seniors, Kelly Wandke, Tammy Blanchard, Sheri Seto, Emily Garcia, Pamela Miller, Debbie Brown, Lisa Tillotson, Dave Wendling, and Craig Bissett; one junior Dana Moser; and the advisor Mr. Gary Haberberger, set off to learn more about the U.S. government. Already in Washington D.C. was senior Tracy Wright who had spent a week in D.C. already.

During the week they spent numerous hours sitting in seminars listening to many different speakers; they went on tours of Washington D.C. to see the many monuments such as, Lincoln, Jefferson, and vietnam memorial. They also had a chance to spend time on capital Hill going through the capital, the Supreme Court, and many other buildings.

When asked what she enjoyed the most about the week, Debbie Brown said, "I enjoyed meeting people who weren't afraid to get to know new people and be themselves." All of the students met a lot of new people because each two people roomed with people from Rhode Island or New Mexico.

"Learning is such an important atmosphere and meeting everyone where you can be yourself," responded Dana Moser when asked about learning and meeting others.

When asked if anything changed his opinion about the government Dave Wendling answered, "yes it did for me. I really want to get involved in government especially after talking to our congressman, Pete Stark."

Cheese and Peperoni, Please!- The Close-Up members Lisa Tillotson, Tammy Blanchard, Kelly Wandke, Craig Bissett, Debbie Brown, Pamela Hiller, Tracy Wright, Dave Wendling, and Dana Moser enjoyed pizza at Armand's after a long day.

Fasten Your Seatbelts, Please!- Mr. Haberberger instructs the Close-Up students about conduct on the plane.

Time Out!-Dave Wendling, Kelly Wandke, Debbie Brown, Sheri Seto, Tammy Blanchard, and Dana Moser sit on the steps of the Capitol. One of the days in Washington was spend on Capitol Hill.

Hello Close-Up, Are You Ready For The Show?- Lisa Tillotson, Sheri Seto, Debbie Brown, Dana Moser, Tammy Blanchard, Dave Wendling, Kelly Wandke, and Doug Randalls from Rhode Island, took time for a quick picture before the show started. The show for the evening was Hello Dolly, Hello.

Twinkle Toes

This year there was a new club at Alameda High school. It was the Dance Club! The Dance Club prided itself on the fact that not all the members were girls. Several boys also joined the dance club.

In January the Dance Club put several of its members in a dance recital in the Koffman Aduionium called "AHS salute to Broadway". The dance recital drew rave reviews from parents students, and teachers alike. The dancers ranged from a tribute to "the South Pacific" to a number from "Cats".

Most of the members of the Dance Club who preformed in the recital choreographed their own dances with occasional help from Ms. Phraner. Ms. Phraner also served as the sponser to the club in its first year.

Dreamy Court

Alameda High entered the Shakespearian stage with the performance of A Midsummer Night's Dream. This play was performed as the Theatre Arts Department's fall effort. A Midsummer Night's Dream's success was attributed to its format. Instead of the usual time and setting of Shakespearian works, this production took place in the Bay Area in 1986 with Oberon and Titania as the king and queen of rock and roll as opposed to the king and queen of the fairies, "The play was great," said Kevin Mann, AHS senior. "It was the best I've ever seen at AHS." The great spirit of the play could be attributed to the interpretation of Mr. Fred Chacon, director. Mr. Chacon brought out many of the underlying themes of the timeless play.

The play was accentuated by original music from Alameda's own talented band, The Stand, and by the new stage built by the stage production crew. The play truly showed the adaptability of the actors and actresses at Alameda High. They were: Greg Bruno as Theseus, Heather Noble as Hippolyta, Marion Thomas, Lisa Mosely, Sasha Flagler, and Jolyn Gibb as attendants to Hippolyta, Robert Sherriff as Egeus, Jill Rydman as Hermia, Brenden Moorehead as Lysander, David Diaz as Demetrius, Cathy Cohen as Helena, Scott Jones as Philostrate, Richard Bunker as Nick Bottom, John Burnley as Francis Flute, Steve De La Torre as Robin Starveling Kantad Svendsgaard as Tom Snout, Sam Louis as Snug, Phil Ricafort as Oberon, Gretchen Anderson as Puck, Erin Gilchrist as Titania, Lisa Moseley as Cobweb, Patty Ensley as Peaseblossom, Ann Norman as Snail, Sasha Flagler as Moth, Tim Mihok as Mustardseed, Barbara Price as Butterfly, Marion Thomas as Pumpkinhead, and Alex Diaz as the changeling boy.

Oh really? - Titania's fairies listen attentively to Puck's (Gretchen Anderson) story.

You want me to do what? - Puck (Gretchen Anderson) takes more orders from a very demanding Oberon, King of Fairies.

Oh what a feeling - Erin Gilchrist and Phil Ricafort rejoice at the end of the play.

The Fashion Club- Bottom row: Allison Wilkie, Sherry Cortez, and Norma Damen. Top row: Alicia Hayden, Denise Browning, Margaret Sandoval, and Denae Paiva.

CROW- Bottom row: Dennis Aman, Ron Parodi, Jin Kim, Julia Berger, Rachel Loui, and Jeannette Clay. Top row: Nic Hass, Annie Ventresco, Cathleen Laine, Desmond Chin, Deborah Schneider, Saween Singh, Christine Lee, and Jackie Ulrich.

The Fencing Club- Bottom row: Holly Kittelman, Michael Cuadra, Scott Williams, and Brian Kim. Top row: Jin Kim, Donald Wong, Robert Griffith, and Mitch Accornnero.

Tres Chic

One endeavor of the Fashion Club was their successful display on Career Day. Fashion Club members chose students from the audience and selected colors which appeared to fit them best. Then a panel of four or five color consultants judged which colors were the best. This was done free of charge.

The main project for this unique club was the Spring fashion show. The theme was "World Rage". This show, based on fashions worn by students around the globe, was run by students only from both Alameda and Encinal High's Regional Occupational Programs.

"I joined Fashion Club because it looked like a lot of fun," smiled Sherry Cortez. No doubt, Sherry and the rest of the members from such an outstanding club were not dismayed.

Red and black attack- Allison Mosier, Denae Paiva, and Candice Gonzalez display their true colors.

Put 'Em Up

Jujitsu was not just a form of self defense. Jijitsu taught us to respect each other and learn from our mistakes. It also taught us discipline, to work together, and to share.

Jujitsu was taught by Sensei Dave Fairfield and Sensei Ron Beatty. Each move had to be done carefully so none got hurt.

Jujitsu was a very special class. It taught me so much more than self defense.

Watch the hair - Norma Damen throws Denea Pavia to the ground in a Jujitsu move.

I'm not going to hit him - Dave Fairfield jokes around with Bryan Brown.

You're wrinkling my shirt - Gilbert Dunn attemps to flip Dina Johnston.

I can fly - Ryan Teichert helps Kent Manuel reach new heights

Spreading cheer - Julia Berger, Sherry Cortez, Jolene Chan, and Linda SaeJang spread cheer . . . in a different language!

One, and a two . . . -Linda SaeJang, Julia Berger, Cathy Cortez, Jolene Chan, and Sherry Cortez comprise the members of the French Club who went caroling.

The cheerful choir-The French Club is ready and waiting to begin. They went Christmas caroling at two convalescent homes at South Shore.

La Club De Francais!

"Despite our rocky beginning, we've become an enthusiastic, supportive club. I'm proud to be president," said Sherry Cortez, president of the 1986-87 French Club.

They sponsored many activities within school and around the city. At school there were such projects as the annual rose sale for Valentine's Day. At Christmas, they went caroling at two convalescent homes at South Shore.

One of the main objectives of the French Club was to go to a French restaurant at the end of the year, but more importantly, to promote the understanding of the French culture.

La, la, la, etc.- Linda Sae Jang backs Jolene Chan as they sing at Hillhaven.

The singing Rockettes- Sherry Cortez, Linda SaeJang, and Jolene Chan sing a harmony from their trusty songbooks.

Knee-deep in thought - Senior Artemio Dongon contemplates hitting the slopes at Tahoe's Heavenly Valley. The ski club, leaving at 5 a.m., went to Heavenly on January 17.

Hmmm, not bad - After skiing, Henry Morten, Stephanie Laub and Jim Skinner have a good time with the great taste of McDonalds.

Hit the slopes with the Ski Club!

Why would anyone wake up at four a.m. on a Saturday, no less, to only stand in front of the school, shivering for about another 15 minutes?

The answer of course is to go skiing with the Alameda High School Ski Club. This large, dedicated group of skiers and would-be skiers soon left for the slopes at Heavenly Valley near South Lake Tahoe. This trip was the first of the year for the club. Even with the ski season starting late in the Lake Tahoe area, the club was able to go on three trips. Other trips were to Squaw Valley—a three-day overnighter in February, and also one for March at Kirkwood. The group did not have a weekly meeting time, but usually met periodically to inform members of upcoming trips in advisor Tom Rayman's room.

Get on there! - David Freistroffer, senior struggles to put his boot on. Many members of the ski club owned their own equipment; others rented.

Just happy to be alive - Brian Campbell breathes deeply in the brisk mountain air and smiles for the camera.

The Science Club - First Row: Guen Toste, Corrine Caulk, Karen Nakazawa, Second Row: Valerie Wire, Eric Suesse, Third Row: Judy Ourneay and Jeff Gay.

Young Explorers!

"I t's a small but strong club, here to mainly have fun learning and to help the science department," said club President Judy Journeay.

Doctor Susan Paden led the future sciencetists on many excursions through the year. The 15 member club started with a trip to the San Francisco exploratorium. Future plans for the club were visits to the Montera Bay Aquarium, Steinhart Aquarium and a camping trip planned for the spring.

A proud achievement of the club was that of raising enough money and putting in enough time and effort to buy new Physics books.of All the members expressed great pride in this accomplishment.

Twirls n' swirls - Valerie Wire smiles as she plays and learns. The science club was a sedicated Group.

Peek a boo! - Advisor Dr. Susan Paden and Guen Toste explore new possibilities in science.

Who ... me?! - Judy Journeay poses for the camera and Guen Toste and Valerie Wire learn about electricity. Judy was the clubs president.

Is it time yet? - Dr. Paden checks the time as anxious club members prepare to explore the exploratorium.

The 1986-87 Speech Club- Top row: Zach Kaplin, Helen Park, Al Manbeian, Phil Ricafort, Irene Ng, Mark Ambrose. Bottom row: Lori Duran, Christine Lee, Saweeen Singh, Erin Gilchrist, and Alison Golde.

Gee, thanks- Annie Ventresco accepts her award at a competition. The members of the speech club did very well this year in the competitions.

Saween walks away with the prize- Saween Singh accepts her award and smiles. Saween was the president of Speech Club

I'd like to thank . . . - Saween Singh poses with her award after the competition. The club participated in many competitions this year.

The thrill of victory- Al Manbeian Shows his enthusiasm after winning his award. Al was the vice president of this year's club.

Way to go!-Kim Tony applauds a fellow member to the Speech Club. Kim was the Speech club publicity officer.

Amazing Oratory

The speech club was AHS's club for students interested in oratory. The members learned to make a wide variety of speeches including: original oratory, dramatic interpretation, humorous interpretation and extempory speech. The members participated in many competitions and enjoyed much success. The club was awarded several first, second, and third place awards in the B division and second and fifth place awards in the A division.

The club was supervised by Barbra Gravelle and co-advisor Christine Lee. Officers were: Saween Singh, president; Al Manbiean, vice president; Ray Sunia, treasurer; Kim Tony, publicity; and Alicia Sitz, secretary.

Club advisor Barbra Gravelle said about speech club: "Life is not to breathe but to speak."

The hardest thing about being a parent is learning to let your children go their own way and make a place for themselves in the world. This is what I'm trying to do now to give you the freedom that you want but still provide the guidance you might need as you make you way into a life of independence. I may not be successful all the time, but I want you to know that if sometimes I still hold on too tightly, it's only because I love you-and that will never change.

The difficulty is not so great to die for a friend. As to find a friend worth dying for.

There ain't no sin and there ain't virtue. Some of the things folks do is nice, and some ain't nice, But that's as far as any man got a right to say.

What is moral is what you feel good after and what is immortal is what you feel better after.

Excuse me then! You know my heart; but dearest friends, alas! Must part. Good luck all.

Counting on Distinction

Creativity "En Masse" - The yearbook staff takes a moment to relax in the sunshine

Critical thinking - Jason Donald contemplates the consequences of missing a deadline.

The 1986-1987 ACORN Staff:

Colleen Clark - Editor-In-Chief
Sarah Leslie - Assistant Editor
Desmond Chin - Sports Editor
Darryl Lee - Academics Editor
Jenny Feitelberg - Seniors Editor
Jason Donald - Underclassmen Editor
Irene Ng - Clubs Editor
Leila Tajiri - Ads Manager
Lisa Tillotsen - Index
Tony Patterson - Photographer

STAFF: Ann Adams, Elizabeth Brown, Julia Berger, Precious Costales, Tim Folsom.

1st Semester Staff: Kim Glucoft, Kim Merideth, Noelle Matteson, Pamela Lim.

Flipped out - Tony Patterson cracks under deadline pressure.

A natural typist - Darrll Lee exemplifies his unique typing position.

CHALLENGE, PRESSURE, HILLARITY, AND INSANITY is pretty accurate definition of our year as the makers of the 1986-1987 ACORN.

Goodness knows we had our share of downs: loosing a camera full of film right before a deadline, run-ins with coaches, arguments between ourselves. But we had the moments of joyful triumph to pull us through. Precious and Ann's "Peanuts" immitations, Julia's ingenious sales commericals, and "A Chorus Line". And of course, who could forget an angry Leila pulling an exacto knife on us in frustration?

Yet piece by piece we put together what we proudly call "The Best Book Ever." The theme "Count on Distinction" came to be the motto which drove us all to sweat and tears; and what finally pulled us together to create our dream.

Enjoy!!!

Colleen C. Clark, Editor-in-Chief

Copy Preparation

Anyone need a type sheet? Desmond Chin, Julia Berger, and Precious Costales work hard to meet a deadline.
